DYNAMITE NEAR FORE RIVER

Dig Up 60 Sticks Close To Shipyards, Bridge

Only 150 yards from the U. S. S. Wasp, new navy airplane carrier across the river, 60 sticks of dynamite were found buried in 18 inches of gravel near the Boston Edison Company plant at Weymouth, it was learned today.

The dynamite was unearthed last Wednesday at a spot 150 feet from the Edison plant and close to the Fore River bridge by a crew of workmen employed by the Thomas O'Connor Construction Co. of Cambridge.

They were digging a trench, under supervision of Daniel O'Connor, for a steam pipe line to run under the new Fore river bridge.

FOUND BY WORKMEN

With the discovery it was first feared that a plot had been laid to destroy or injure the airplane carrier Wasp, which is being completed for service, or to damage the Fore River shipbuilding yard.

After investigation, however, officials voiced as one opinion that dynamite might have been forgotten when the new bridge was completed some time ago.

When the dynamite was unearthed by the workmen, they notified Foreman O'Connor, who reported it to R. L. Elwell, construction inspector at the Eidson plant.

Elwell notified Fire Chief Timothy G. McCarthy of Weymouth, who relayed the information of the discovery to State Fire Marshal Stephen J. Garrity at the State House.

The marshal assigned Inspector Kenneth W. Bailey, who made a minute inspection of the area with Chief McCarthy, but no more dynamite was revealed.

The dynamite, marked "Hercules Gelatine Dynamite, 60 Per Cent," was exploded by Bailey in a Weymouth gravel pit.

Last Saturday, in order to be certain that no more explosive was cached in the area, a more detailed search was made by Bailey and McCarthy, aided by a crew of Edison laborers. The search was fruitless.

Today, upon being advised that the officials were satisfied there was no more dynamite buried in the vicinity, a complete report was furnished by Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk County.

DEWING AIDS PROBE

Dewing notified the Department of Justice and Boston Navy Yard officials. There followed an inspection of the area by Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics expert, his son and aide, Charles J. Van Amburgh, Jr., Bailey and a Department of Justice agent.

Today also it was learned that Bailey, for three months, has been surveying the South Shore for dynamite caches, and other members of the fire marshal's department have been assigned various districts throughout the state in a complete check of dynamite firms and search for any dynamite that might be missing.

Yugoslavia to Aid Nazis Run Blockade

BELGRADE, April 3 (AP)—Yugoslavia will sanction use of her territorial waters for German freighters seeking a blockade-proof route for carrying Yugoslav bauxite to Trieste, Italy, an official source declared today.

The government declared units of the British fleet, on the watch for blockade evaders, thus far had not been sighted north of Corfu by Yugoslav ships. Corfu is the Greek island near the entrance to the Adriatic.

NEW RAID ON BRITISH CONVOY

BERLIN, April 3 (AP)—DNB, German official news agency, today reported that Nazi warplanes had "successfully" attacked merchant ships in a British convoy in the northern part of the North sea this noon.

The agency offered no amplification of the dispatch, which came soon after the German high command communique reporting success in a new air raid last night on Scapa Flow.

Despite unfavorable weather and strong defense, the communique said "it was possible to damage several ships by square hits or close explosions."

BRITISH VERSION

(Britain said the Scapa Flow ships were undamaged, and that one of 20 German raiders was believed to have been downed. A lone German raider was shot down off the northeast coast today by a single R. A. F. fighting plane. Another was chased away from the Shetland Islands, the British said.)

The text of today's communique by the German high command:

"On the Western Front livelier scouting activity.

"On April 2 air reconnaissance continued over the entire North Sea along the English coast to the Shetland Islands and over eastern France.

PLANE FORCED DOWN

"One German reconnaissance plane, after an air fight with three British chasers, was forced to descend on the sea. The crew was rescued by another German scouting plane.

"In the evening hours British naval forces at Scapa Flow were again attacked. Although the

Own Story of Why She Quit Her Job as Census Enumerator

Here, for the first time, is the actual story of a 1940 federal census enumerator, given exclusively to the Boston Evening American.

It is the story of a woman census-taker and her experiences during her first—and only—day spent in gathering family statistics for Uncle Sam. She gave up the job after the first day, and here she tells why.

This story, an experience of exception rather than the rule, is printed to show that all is not serene along the census front, although co-operation is found to be general.

By A CENSUS ENUMERATOR (Resigned)

In the first place, my experience as a census enumerator proved to my satisfaction that it is no work for a woman to undertake.

I was terrifically enthused when I was selected as an enumerator. I attended classes faithfully and thought I knew all there was to know when I completed my course of instruction.

I was assigned to a certain district, given a map of the area that I was to enumerate, as well as a brief case, and all the schedules necessary.

This outfit weighed five pounds and at the end of my first day's work, after climbing up and down stairways, I was extremely tired from carrying it.

CLIMBING DIFFICULT

The first house I visited was a wooden structure. I rang the bell of suite 1 to find there was no one at home and under my instructions I was to return at 6:30 p. m. My work began at 9:30 a. m.

I then rang the bell of apartment number two. I was received very graciously by a middle-aged woman. She told me she read the Boston Evening American accounts of the census project, but was not expecting me so early in the morning.

The hallway was very dark and I found difficulty in climbing the stairs.

The woman ushered me into her dining room and answered questions politely to the best of her ability. Her husband having left information as to his salary, etc., and her daughter having done likewise, that visitation was not only successful but pleasant.

GETS FIRST INSULT

I ran into a little difficulty with her, however, when it came to filling out the housing schedule. She knew who owned the house but did not know how old the structure was, whether or not it was mortgaged, its value, and other information of this character which an enumerator should get.

My next visit was to a house across the street where I was grossly insulted. After I rang the bell a woman of about 60 years of age

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, April 3 (AP)—A mission hall at Lurgan was damaged by fire today, the result, authorities declared, of an arson campaign by the outlawed Irish Republican Army against buildings used in Great Britain's war effort.

Full Pardon For Groton Cop

Eliot P. Clark, the Groton policeman who lost his job because of a criminal record yet found he had a town full of friends, was granted a full pardon today by the executive council on recommendation of Acting Governor Horace T. Cahill.

Clark was sentenced on Feb. 11, 1930, in Middlesex Superior Court, to five years and one day in Concord Reformatory for breaking and entering and assault with intent to rob.

Good behavior won him a parole after serving 15 months of his sentence and the pardon recommendation today was made because of his outstanding behavior since his release.

Soviets Approve Huge War Defense Fund

MOSCOW, April 3 (AP)—The largest defense appropriation in the history of the Soviet Union was approved unanimously by the Russian parliament today as it adopted the government's 1940 budget.

The budget provides for defense expenditures of 57,000,000,000 rubles, well above last year's record figure of 40,885,000,000 rubles. (The nominal value of the ruble is 20 cents.)

HUB RED DEFIES DIES GROUP, SHIELDS HARVARD COMRADE

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The Dies committee met defiance today from a young Communist leader, Thomas O'Dea of Boston, who refused to disclose the name of the secretary of the Young Communist League at Harvard University.

The witness appeared before the committee as president of the Young Communist League of Massachusetts.

Although the committee had previously voted contempt citations against other Communist leaders who refused to give information and the House had taken steps toward prosecutions, O'Dea did not hesitate a moment when J. B. Matthews, committee investigator, asked him for the name of league secretary at Harvard.

"I refuse to answer because it would subject that person to economic pressure," he declared. "He would be deprived of the opportunity to obtain employment and his rights under the constitution would be violated."

Unsuccessful to date in efforts to obtain lists of party members and other data, the committee called three Communist leaders from Massachusetts and one from Philadelphia. Chairman Dies (D.) of Texas said he had evidence that the party had gained rather than lost followers after the Nazi-Soviet pact and the Finnish invasion.

Committee members considered their hand strengthened by the House action in supporting their moves to punish previous Communist witnesses who have balked at giving information.

BABY FACE PUT IN SOLITARY TO BEGIN LIFE TERM

The high hopes she had for her son never will be realized for Mrs. Antoinette Virga.

STUDIES of 17-year-old Michael "Baby Face" Virga as he got life sentence for slaying of South End storekeeper.

Her 17-year-old boy, Michael, was in solitary confinement in State Prison today. He has the rest of his life to meditate his murder of Vasco Pina, crippled South End shopkeeper.

Police labelled him Baby Face.

And despite a bit of assumed swagger, Michael looked the part as he stood up in Suffolk Superior Court to plead guilty to second degree murder and be sentenced to life imprisonmet—a clean-cut, black haired youth.

He had been in minor troubles before and had spent some time in Lyman School. He was paroled.

Baby Face then thought he needed money. He believed he "had a right to live," he said.

That "right," he was sure, included money for good times so he went out with a gun to get it at a neighbor's store.

That's why Baby Face had to stand up and hear Judge John P. Higgins sentence him to life, while his mother sat watching in a front row courtroom seat.

Michael—Baby Face—tried to show indifference. He said to his mother:

"Oh, I'll be all right."

But she knew it wasn't so as attendants led her away.

After she had left he walked under guard to a washstand and carefully slicked his dark hair.

"When do we go," he demanded with a show of bravado.

Both hands shackled he was taken to the State Prison van by Deputy Sheriff James McNulty. A few minutes later the doors of the "Big House" clanged behind him—for the rest of his life, the law says.

STATE ACCEPTS PLEA

Police Stenographer Richard Sullivan was reading a confession made by young Virga on the day following the murder in the Albany st. variety store, when Virga stopped the trial by beckoning to his counsel, Atty. Michael Carchia.

The whispered conference over, Carchia conferred with Asst. Dist. Atty. James T. Cassidy.

Then the court was informed of Virga's intention and the commonwealth's acceptance of his plea. Clerk John Swift called upon Virga to stand.

"Do you wish to change your plea?" he asked.

"Yes. Guilty in the second degree," was the answer.

Black Spade Tells Of Toy-Gun Holdups

Armed with riot guns, officers of the special service squad of Boston police surrounded a South End rooming house today, smashed in a door and arrested a 21-year-old youth who admitted in a police lineup that he was the Black Spade bandit.

The youth who police announced yesterday was terrorizing the city and who was captured only after Acting Police Commissioner Edward W. Fallon ordered his department to "get him—or else" was revealed as a pale-faced, red-haired youth who carried on his career of crime with a nickel-plated toy pistol.

Booked on a charge of suspicion of armed robbery, he gave his name as Harold W. Hawbolt of Union Park st.

In his room raiding officers, Sergt. William Harrow and Detectives Albert Hurst, Robert Maher, Clark Adair and William Boyden, found the tiny gun, a dirk knife in a sheath—and a pile of newspaper clips about the exploits of the Black Spade.

"Who tipped you guys off?" Hawbolt asked officers when they broke in and found him.

Arrested at the same time was Hawbolt's roommate, a 22-year-old youth whom the police did not hold.

PLACED IN LINEUP

Taken to Boston police headquarters for fingerprinting, Hawbolt said:

"I guess you got me, so I might as well admit I'm the guy who called himself the 'Black Spade.' I got the idea after I read about those threatening letters sent to Mayor Frank E. Lewis of Everett a month or two ago.

"I've been living at the boarding house since last October. I was a counter man in a chain restaurant, but I got fired Feb. 14. Then I used to drink and finally I got up enough courage to pull off these jobs."

Later, in the biggest lineup police headquarters has seen in months—attended by Deputy Supts. James R. Claflin and John M. Anderson—Hawbolt, soft-voiced and sullen, explained:

"The first job I did was in Medford. I got a motorist when he stopped at a traffic light and made him drive at gunpoint—toy gunpoint—to Wakefield. I got nothing.

"Then he fainted, and I had to come all the way back by street car. I wasted the whole evening and I had to pay carfare.

TELLS OF HOLDUPS

"Then I found a man and a woman in a car stopped for a traffic light on Commonwealth ave, and I made them drive to Cambridge. I got $18 from them.

"A couple of days later I got into a cab in downtown Boston, threatened the driver with my dirk and made him drive out toward West Roxbury. I got about $2 from him.

"Then I got into another cab a week later and made him drive to Hyde Park. All I got was a handful of change."

His last job, he said, was yesterday when he followed his usual technique in kidnaping and robbing Edwin A. Gourley, 21, Hamilton College student and son of a well-to-do stationer.

A consequence of that holup, however, came when Hawbolt was driving Gourley's car back from where he had left its owner and

Medford Sisters to Wed North End Brothers

2 Medford Sisters Will Wed Brothers

Two Medford sisters are due to keep a double date a week from Sunday when they walk together down the middle aisle of St. Leonard's Church, North End, to marry two North End brothers.

The romance started two years ago when the mother of the girls became ill at her home in Windsor rd., Medford, and called in Dr. Cosmo Anthony Guarciariello of Endicott st., North End. The doctor arrived, but not alone. His brother, Anthony Francis, a civil engineer, was driving the car for him.

While Carmela Giuliano and the doctor were taking care of the patient, sister Christine and brother Anthony found plenty to talk about.

Each time the doctor called, Anthony was at the wheel of the car, and afterward in the parlor with Christine. Soon the happy foursome were going out together.

The honeymoon plans? Well, after the reception at a downtown hotel, the four newlyweds will visit Florida.

Jessel to Marry Week From Sunday

NEW YORK, April 3 (INS) — Barring unforeseen events, George Jessel, 42, the comedian, and Lois Andrew, 16, glamorous Broadway show girl, will be married a week from Sunday in Detroit, Mich., the Journal and American reported today.

Michigan was selected because there a girl of 16 can marry without parental consent, the Journal and American stated.

DANGER of pneumonia caused friends of Binnie Barnes, film actress, above, to rush her to Hollywood Hospital. Physicians there said her condition has improved.

ROOSEVELT AND DEWEY WIN EASILY IN WISCONSIN TESTS

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt and Thomas E. Dewey emerged today as easy victors in Wisconsin's presidential primaries, but the complicated balloting system may cut into their slates of national convention delegates.

Followers of the two men also won the only contests for district delegates in New York.

Mr. Roosevelt, still silent on the third term issue, led Vice-President Garner by nearly a 3 to 1 ratio in the Wisconsin preferential voting on the Democratic ticket.

On the Republican ballot, delegates-at-large pledged to District Attorney Dewey of New York ran about 2 to 1 ahead of the ticket supporting Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Wisconsin, which has 24 votes in each national convention, provided the first direct test of third term sentiment at the polls. Although the President did not give or withhold his consent, two rival-Roosevelt slates were entered.

Consequently, the vote for third term delegates was split, raising the possibility that in final returns one or more Garner delegates might slip into the elected group.

G. O. P. POLLS BIG VOTE

Republicans polled a much larger proportion of the vote than they did four years ago, leading politicians to forecast that Wisconsin would be a November battleground.

Whereas the total Republican vote in the 1936 primary approximated only 190,000, the G. O. P. polled 216,751 yesterday in 2074 of the state's 3011 precincts. Mr. Roosevelt, unopposed, received 401,000 four years ago.

The Democratic vote in 2028 precincts totalled 274,593, divided thus: Roosevelt 209,071; Garner 65,522.

Dewey was the only presidential contender to visit the State. He made a whirlwind tour late last week, while Vandenberg, indicating a belief that the nomination should seek the man, limited himself to a radio speech from Washington.

The two Republicans will fight it out again Tuesday in Nebraska, where Mr. Roosevelt is unopposed. On the same day, Roosevelt and Garner forces will contest in Illinois. Dewey has no opposition in that State's Republican primary, but the vote is not binding.

Yesterday's contests in New York applied only to a fraction of the big bloc of delegates. Garner forces made an unsuccessful challenge in four New York city districts, losing to Democratic organization candidates by ratios extending from 2 to 1 to 5 to 1.

Their principal effort was for the election of Alfred E. Smith, Jr., and State Senator John McNaboe in the 16th district, but Rep. James H. Fay, an active New Dealer, and John Eagan polled twice as many votes.

N. Y. SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT

If Mr. Roosevelt runs, he apparently will get the 94 New York convention votes, although both party delegations were uninstructed. Dewey is expected to have the bulk of the Republican slate, with Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher, getting the remainder.

In the only Republican district contest directly affecting Dewey, delegates opposing him were defeated 6 to 1.

KANSAS CITY, April 3 (AP)—Aroused cleanup forces, led by 7500 actively campaigning women, tore Kansas City's scandal-gripped City Hall away from Tom Pendergast's machine yesterday.

The victory, achieved by a fusion of independent Democrats, Republicans and civic leaders, was almost as decisive as any the erstwhile Democratic boss ever achieved for his puppets.

Fusionists elected John B. Gage, Democratic lawyer, as mayor by 20,000 votes and swept seven of their eight councilmanic candidates and both municipal judges into office with him.

Hear 5 Witnesses In Worcester Probe

WORCESTER, April 3—Five more witnesses went today before the extraordinary session of the Worcester County grand jury, which is engaged in a mystery probe of county affairs.

Waiting to take the stand today were several other witnesses, including Edward Shanahan of Lynn, said to have been an advertising solicitor for the deputy sheriffs' biennial directory in the county.

The five new witnesses who took the stand today, bringing the total to 15 in the three days of investigation, were, in order:

Paul E. Soulliere, former member of the State Emergency Finance Board; Claude L. Zickell and George Venditti, building contractors; oJhn F. Handfield of the People's Savings Bank, and Deputy Sheriff Louis E. Grandmont of Spencer.

Shanahan was subpoenaed after testimony by four deputy sheriffs and a police sergeant.

Arthur A. Keefe, of Oxford, who served as a deputy sheriff 14 years, until Jan. 1, 1939, was under examination three hours.

He was followed by three other deputy sheriffs from Fitchburg: Charles H. Kenney, who served 21 years; Ralph S. McGrath, who served six years, and Ralph G. Lucier, who served seven years.

Sergt. Walter L. Thompkins, fingerprint expert of the state police, from Boston, was also a witness.

Dist. Atty. Owen A. Hoban and his assistants, Alfred B. Cenedella and Charles S. Barton, were in the jury room.

Mary Hamblin Rites Friday

Girls, Boy Pals Held As Armed Bandits

AMHERST, April 3—Driving into a police trap 35 minutes after allegedly holding up a garage, binding the owner and his assistant and escaping with $132, two Millbury youths and two girls, one the bride of a special policeman, were arrested today at gunpoint.

In district court at Northampton, a few hours later, all four were held in $5300 on two charges of armed robbery and two of larceny.

Chester Winchell, 20, and Edward Lestage, 20, both of whom pleaded guilty, were held fro the June superior court.

June Rice, 18, of Millbury, and Beatrice Wheeler, 18-year-old Sutton bride, pleaded not guilty and were held for a district court hearing April 12.

Donald G. Rowe, proprietor of the garage, and Robert Trainor, his helper and son of Police Chief John J. Trainor of Amherst were tied to chairs by the two couples after they entered the establishment at midnight.

Each youth was armed, the victims said, and the girls helped bind ir legs and arms with rope. The quartet then rans cked the garage and seized $130, taking $104 from the cash register and $26 from the two men.

Rowe and Trainer worked themselves free and telephoned the Amherst police st tion and Northampton state police barracks.

In North Amherst, only a few miles from the scene of the holdup, the four were arrested by State Trooper Walter O'Brien and Patrolman Clarence Jewett of Amherst.

Chief Trainor said all four were identified by Rowe and his son. Two unloaded revolvers were found in their car and $90 of the money was recovered, the chief disclosed.

Russell Defense Is Free Speech

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Bertrand Russell's attorney raised the issue of free speech in two court attempts to regain his appointment to the philosophy chair at the College of the City of New York.

Justice John E. McGeehan, who voided the titled British writer's appointment on the ground that he "has taught in his books immoral and salacious doctrines," denied an application for permission for Russell to intervene as principal.

This would have reopened the taxpayer's suit brought by Mrs. Jean Kay, a Brooklyn housewife, which led Justice McGeehan to revoke the Russell appointment.

Prove 275-Lb. Teacher Hazard

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—The board of education gave Mrs. Marguerite S. Cunningham, 275-pound teacher, a special fire drill, and reports she is definitely "a fire hazard" as charged.

This was the gist of Board President James Marshall's remarks when he recently pleaded for legislation for retirement of unfit teachers.

At that time Marshall declared Mrs. Cunningham constituted a danger to pupils because of her general lack of alacrity. The surprise fire drill was subsequently arranged and this was the report of the board's agent:

"Before Mrs. Cunningham had limped down the stairs the children in her class were a block away from her."

Maine Man, 90, Takes Own Life

BENTON, Me., April 3—Ashley J. Keene, 90, was dead here today, a suicide with one of the guns he had used in his treks to California and the Klondike in gold rush days.

Medical Examiner Napoleon Bisson said the weapon was so old that the victim had to file down modern cartridges to fit it. Two of them failed to explode before a third took his life. The reason for his act was given as despondency.

Meningitis Now Seen As Conquered Disease

CLEVELAND, April 3 (AP)—Evidence that meningitis, the brain inflammation which has been a long-time terror to both childhood and later years, is about to join the conquered diseases, like typhoid fever, yellow fever, the plague and many others, was presented to the American College of Physicians here today.

One type was influenzal meningitis, rated until a short time ago as 100 per cent fatal. Hospital records showed seven of its last 13 cases were cured.

Another type was non-hemolytic streptococcus meningitis, the name identifying the kind of streptococcus which causes this type of meningitis. Rarely have recoveries been reported. The hospital showed two babies who were cured by sulfapyridine.

A third type is epidemic meningitis, formerly known as jail fever and flea-bite fever. Its death rate once ranged between 50 and 90 per cent. In the last three years the hospital has had 30 cases, not one fatal.

The fourth type was the hemolytic streptococcus meningitis. In 1935 and 1936 the hospital had 11 cases, only one living. But in 1937 and 1938 only two of 11 died. The treatment for this type was sulfanilamide.

ORMAND'S DEATH UP TO GRAND JURY

Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford today planned to present the stories of a Charlestown tavern keeper and a paroled convict in the death of Charles A. Ormand, 62, of Lancaster, Pa., to a Middlesex grand jury.

An inquest report by Judge Arthur P. Stone of East Cambridge court declared, that while the secret naval agent was beaten and robbed, his death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Judge Stone also found that Ormand was sober. At the same time he exonerated Cambridge police who arrested him by deciding that the condition brought on by the hemorrhage would produce the outward appearance of intoxication.

Held for the action of the grand jury are Paul Cassettari, owner of a Charlestown bar, and Michael A. Berlandi, former boxer and prison parolee.

Corroborating the report of Medical Examiner David C. Dow, Sr., who found that Ormand's death, at Cambridge City Hospital, where he was removed from a courthouse detention room while awaiting trial, was due to natural causes, Judge Stone reported:

"I find that Ormand died from a cerebral hemorrhage, progressive in its nature and that the unlawful act of no person contributed to his death.

"It is possible that, if he had received proper medical treatment earlier than he did, his condition might have been ameliorated and his life slightly prolonged, but I do not so find. In any event, he would have died from this shock.

"I also find that while he was in this partially helpless condition he was robbed by Paul Cassettari and Michael A. Berlandi and was assaulted by Berlandi.

"I find that these two men took Ormand from the tavern in Charlestown and robbed him, presumably in or near the club, situated at Jacques and Wheatland sts., in Somerville. I find that Berlandi, alone, assaulted him.

"I do not, however, find that the criminal acts of Cassettari and Berlandi contributed to the death of the said Charles Ormand."

2 Lawyers Face More Accusers

Joseph and Samuel Stern, brothers and Boston attorneys, were scheduled to face additional accusers today in hearings on charges of "unethical solicitation of business" brought by the Boston Bar Ass'n in State Supreme Court. Ten charges were on file.

The first witness to appear before Justice Louis S. Cox, Mrs. Isabelle Zartha of Springfield st., South End, had testified that Joseph Stern had written her and personally requested to be given a case in which she, her husband, Said, and her son, Robert, were injured in an automobile crash.

She stated he had advised her to go to a certain doctor and was told not to talk the case over with anyone.

Here's Your Chance To Win Nice Pig

Want a nice, live pig?

Well, just attend the rummage sale to be held Friday at Horticultural Hall in aid of the Boston Evening Clinic.

When an appeal for gifts was made, donations poured in and brought the offer of a young porker as well.

It was accepted but the women's committee in charge had quite a problem in deciding where to keep it until the day of the sale. They finally found a place just outside Boston, where it can be delivered to the highest bidder.

'Why I Quit My Census Job'

amered. When I told her I was a nsus enumerator she slammed thloor and said "to hell with you."

Th opened the door again and sat "You are nothing but a Communist."

replied "I beg your pardon, nsam, I am working for the Uited States government and the is a penalty attached if you dnot answer these questions."

YELLED AT ME

he yelled at me, "I will not nswer those questions."

hen she accused me of being intoxicated and of not being a taxpayer.

"I always pay my taxes," she said.

Then she became more vituperative in expressions that could not be printed.

She said, "You're a Bolshevick and in the employ of the Republicans. Uncle Sam knows too much."

I said, "Well, madam, won't you let me leave a schedule and you can fill it out and I will call back tomorrow."

"I will tear it up in your face if you leave it," she replied.

And so I got nowhere fast. Again she slammed the door in my face. And it took all that abuse for a possible 12 cents!

NERVES STRAINED

I never heard such filthy language and never was so insulted in my life. I was trembling from nervousness when I left her doorstep.

At first I thought of calling a policeman to complain of this woman's vile language, but then I thought of the adverse publicity that would come if I went into court to prosecute.

Going to the next house the woman invited me into her kitchen. As this woman was very vague about all the facts I required it took me 45 minutes to fill out the sheet—and all for 24 cents, 16 cents for the four persons on the population schedule, and 8 cents for the housing questions.

RESENTS QUESTIONS

I then went to the third floor apartment and the woman I talked with there resented all the questions.

When I asked her her age she replied:

"What difference does that make; Uncle Sam knows too damn much anyway."

Then, in response to my questions, she said:

"Well, I'll say 40, to —— with it!"

I told her the answer should be truthful in the event she should seek an old-age pension. Flippantly she replied:

"I don't want to live that long."

Like nearly all the women I encountered she resented the question on how much rent she paid, how much income the family had during 1939 and what the average monthly bill was for gas, electricity and fuel.

FINDS IT'S MAN'S JOB

To each of these questions she said in a very flip tone:

"Who wants to know?"

The "who" and "wants" she put more emphasis on.

At this point I called a halt and went to lunch. While eating I thought it all over and came to the conclusion the amount of work I had done and the abuse I had submitted to were not worth what Uncle Sam was willing to pay me. I would not want any woman of my acquaintance to go through what I experienced.

As I said in the beginning, 'he work is a man's job—not a woman's.

Private Census Public Affair

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The census takers are giving us all the privacy of a fellow with a nagging wife in a trailer camp.

If 120,000,000 people answered their doorbells at the same time it would make America the world's largest cuckoo clock.

If a man rings your doorbell and asks if you're alive, you can nod feebly in the affirmative. But if your doorbell is broke, that makes you a splendid case of suspended animation.

MIXED RECEPTION FOR CENSUS CREW

Greater Boston census takers were getting fair results today, the second day of the enumeration for 1940, but despite denials of officials there continued to be cases of unhappiness among enumerators themselves.

While for the most part, householders were greeting the enumerators cordially, there were instances of census-takers quitting because of hostile receptions and the realization that they could make no large sum as wages through their task.

There was not a single case of striking reported among 2,000,000 persons questioned thus far in Suffolk, Middlesex, Norfolk and Essex Counties, according to Patrick J. Murray, area manager.

But there were many instances in which census takers themselves quit.

Murray admitted cases where "a few" had objected to perhaps a single question. But he maintained no citizen had staged a downright strike.

In Lawrence and in Rowley, where groups of Tobey followers had been organized, the threatening trouble was met when leaders were persuaded to abandon their plans.

Expected trouble in Newton, where the Board of Aldermen voted 15 to 2 not to ask residents to cooperate, also failed to materialize.

But—

STANDS ON LEGAL RIGHTS

In Dorchester one woman, recognizing the enumerator who called as the son of a woman acquaintance, stood on her legal rights to call for another census taker to ask her the necessary questions.

"I liked the enumerator, but it would have been embarrassing to both of us if I had to tell him the answers, but I don't mind telling someone I don't know," she explained to William J. Teehan, assistant district supervisor, after giving him the answers.

Four of the 1300 Greater Boston enumerators who set out jauntily with their five-pound folios quit their jobs during the day.

One woman quit after a morning of climbing and descending tenement and apartment house stairways, convinced she couldn't make fast enough progress or money.

A man found himself in the same state after half a day of stair climbing, and threw up the job.

Both incidents occurred in the downtown district, and according to Area Manager Murray, it is expected that others will find the going too tough and quit.

A second woman decided after a few calls that she didn't like the job, and quit.

The second young man was notified at the last moment of his appointment to a job in private industry and resigned as an enumerator.

Area Manager Murray, after receiving reports from the nine district supervisors under his jurisdiction, expressed amazement at the co-operation of the public.

"Not a door was slammed," he said jubilantly. "The supervisors report amazing co-operation where we had expected considerable resistance due to the speeches of census opponents.

Maurice V. O'Toole, supervisor of the Worcester area, reported that some enumerators in the Berkshires were using skis, and others in the Connecticut valley using rubber boots. One enumerator was through in an hour. His district had but one house.

$110,198,160 Army Budget Slash Urged

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The House appropriations committee, source of many recent economy moves, recommended to the House today an army appropriation of $785,999,904—a sum $67,357,660 below President Roosevelt's proposal.

In addition to that reduction, the committee also cut $42,840,500 from the $87,780,000 in contractual authority sought by the War Department.

"The committee does not believe the accompanying measure may be further appreciably reduced without doing actual hurt to the military establishment," the group said.

Elimination of $12,734,060 for a cold weather air training base at Anchorage, Alaska, and of all but 57 of 496 new airplanes sought for a so-called "rotating reserve" accounted for more than half the cut.

The army appropriation measure as recommended would provide $103,710,000 for new equipment—described by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, as the army's "great objective."

This total included $61,250,000 for "critical" needs such as anti-aircraft artillery, semi-automatic rifles, tanks, anti-tank guns and artillery; $12,000,000 for seacoast defenses, including fixed and mobile guns; $18,500,000 for augmentation and replacement of motor vehicles for the regular army and National Guard; $2,260,000 for harbor defense boats, air corps crash boats and similar craft used by the army, and $9,700,000 for airplanes for both the regular army and National Guard.

More Police Fail To End Holdups

Another holdup was staged in Boston today despite extra details of police patrolling streets under orders of Supt. Fallon.

Latest victim was Onnie Herk, 34, of Tremont st., South End, accosted by two men in West Fourth st., South Boston, near the Dover st. bridge.

Each had a revolver, Herk said. They seized $4.50, then struck him on the head with a gun butt when he begged for a dime carfare.

The holdup occurred only a few hours after two armed men invaded the Monnay drug store at Warrentor and Washington sts., downtown, and demanded money from the proprietor, Nicholas H. Nevler.

When Nevler pretended he could not hear them, one of the pair hit him repeatedly with a revolver butt. Nevler picked up a knife and slashed at his assailant, stabbing him at least once.

A few minutes after midnight Cambridge police took a 19-year-old youth into custody when he sought treatment of a stab wound in the back at Cambridge City Hospital.

Break Suspects Beat Policeman

Battling two store-break suspects in Dorchester ave., South Boston, today, Patrolman Lawrence J. Walsh of the Athens st. station had a front tooth knocked out and was badly beaten about the face.

He succeeded in arresting one of the men, however, and the other visibly the worse for wear and tear, was picked up later by Walsh and his fellow-officer, Patrolman Joseph D. McGillvray.

Walsh said the two suspects were laden with loot taken from a variety store in Dorchester ave.

Warrants charging the arrested pair with breaking and entering and assault and battery on a police officer were sought in South Boston court.

Black Spade Tells Escapades

Officers Alfred McFadden and Cornelius Begley of the Somerville police gave chase.

ESCAPES IN CRASH

In a double crash McFadden and Begley were seriously injured. Hawbolt escaped from the wreckage of Gourley's car without a scratch.

"That was my last job," he declared to police. "I just barely got out of that wreck. I had a medal in my pocket; I guess it brought me luck."

Asked whether he had given any thought to the officers who nearly lost their lives in the crash, he said:

"I didn't ask them to chase me."

Police said Hawbolt would be questioned all day today, and that he would be in the lineup at headquarters again tomorrow for possible identification by his alleged victims.

Find Human Bones In N. H. Fire Ruins

BETHLEHEM, N. H., April 3 (AP)—Discovery of human bones in the ruins of an isolated farmhouse which was destroyed by fire Saturday led Grafton County authorities today to institute a search for Mr. and Mrs. William St. Pierre, occupants of the place, who have not been seen for several days.

WASHINGTON April 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt called upon all citizens today "to take steps needed to strengthen and extend health protection and medical care for mothers and children in every community" as he proclaimed May 1 as Child Health Day.

Bigelow Sees Nazi Victory

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Poultney Bigelow, 85-year-old intimate of the former German kaiser, back from a tour of Germany, convinced the Nazis will win the war.

He recommended drastic action against British seizure of United States mails in an interview last night when he arrived on the Italian liner Vulcania.

Bibelow said Hitler was a "real dictator," adding that Germany can win the war since "we have only to read our history to see what Germany can do under a real leader."

Box for Small Seeds

By T. W. LEGGETT

EVEN after danger of frost is over, and seeds might be sown directly in the ground, it will still pay to use the seed-box for the very small seeds, like petunias; and for varieties of both flowers and vegetables which require transplanting.

The seed-box is under closer observation than even a seed-bed; it may be carried to a shady spot during an exceedingly warm spell. It can be kept where the hose is handy, and soaked daily. The seedling plants may be kept growing without a check, and, when they are ready to move, transplanting may be more easily performed by carrying the flat directly to the spot where the plants are to be set out.

The management of the "flat" is the same, whether it be used outdoors or indoors. The standard sizes range from 12x18 to 14x20 inches, 4 inches deep. They are nailed together loosely, and it is not necesary to bore holes in the bottom for drainage, as excess water will escape through the cracks.

The flat should be filled with a fine loam, preferably sifted to get out all lumps. The coarse soil may be placed in the bottom, but only fine soil should be used on top.

When seedlings are grown in an outdoor box, it is not necessary to transplant them into pots before setting them directly in the garden. But precautions should be taken to avoid crowding, so that the tiny plants may grow as sturdy as possible before they are moved. With the coarser seeds, sow thinly in rows two inches apart and when the seedlings appear thin out so that each stands alone without crowding.

It will help to broadcast the smaller seeds rather than sowing in rows. Take a separate flat for each variety and scatter the seeds over the whole box. They will have more room to grow this way.

Transplanting may be done as soon as the plants have made true leaves. This means the second pair of leaves to appear. If they are left in the box longer than this, they should be thinned out, if necessary, and allowed to develop without restraint from crowding.

TRANSPLANT DIRECTLY INTO THE GARDEN.

Thousands With Weak Kidneys Now Sleep Sound All Night—

Gain in Health by Flushing Excess Poisons Out Through Kidneys—Easing Bladder Irritation, That Causes You To Get Up Nights.

Thousands of men and women wonder why sleeplessness bothers them—why they have to visit the bathroom often at night—why they wake up tired, grouchy and drawn.

These symptoms may mean that your kidneys are sluggish, causing bladder irritation and these minor symptoms may become serious if neglected.

To flush out excess waste poisons and acid from kidneys, soothe your irritated bladder and put more activity into your kidneys, get a 35-cent package of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed.

This tried and true medicine has brought relief to thousands—you should feel better in a few days, as this effective diuretic and kidney stimulant drives excess uric acid from the body which is often the aggravation of joint agony and the pains of sciatica and neuritis.

Don't be any easy mark and accept a substitute—ask for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—right from Haarlem in Holland. Get Gold Medal—the original—the genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.—Adv.

And give each puzzle your careful attention. Add and subtract the given letters and the letters in the names of the objects, with all the care worthy of that $10,000.00 First Prize which can be yours!

Keep up to date with the game. Get your answers in regularly each week so as to keep your entry up to date.

HOW TO SEND IN YOUR ANSWERS

The six puzzles appearing from Monday through Saturday of each week comprise a series. This week's series (Puzzles 43-48) should be submitted anytime before midnight, Saturday, April 13. Subsequent series should similarly be submitted within the week following publication of the series in the Record and American. (You can follow the contest in either paper.)

INFORMATION CORNER

QUERY: Will you print the names and addresses of the people who win the prizes?
REPLY: Certainly.

QUERY: I sent in my puzzles last week without clipping them together. Does that matter?
REPLY: No. As long as they were all together in the same envelope, and each had your answer and your name and address on them, it's all right.

QUERY: Can both a brother and sister enter the Rebus Game? And can each win a prize?
REPLY: Yes—to both questions.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One Hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third, or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles, without assistance, in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In cases of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others, the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the contestant.

Urges U.S. Abolish Diplomatic Corps

WASHINGTON, April 3 (INS)—To end "loose talking" by American diplomats abroad, Sen. Bennett Champ Clark (D.) of Missouri proposed today that the United States abolish all its diplomatic stations in foreign countries.

The Senator, son of the famous Speaker Champ Clark, said:

"The diplomatic corps was created purely because of lack of communication. Now any government head can pick up a telephone and get in direct touch with officials of other governments.

"The diplomatic corps provides too many soft spots for fat cats in campaigns.

"Consular stations handle visa and passport work and commercial communications. The diplomats are no longer needed."

DEMAND QUIZ

If this suggestion was carried out, Clark contended, there could be no such incidents as publication of the German White Book, which charged American diplomats promised U. S. war intervention.

Meanwhile, members of both houses reiterated demands Ambassadors William C. Bullitt and Joseph P. Kennedy be summoned before congressional committees for questioning on the Nazi charges.

Despite these demands, Bullitt prepared to leave for Paris today.

BULLITT TO LEAVE

Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York, ranking Republican on the House foreign affairs committee, demanded Secretary of State Hull delay Bullitt for questioning, but Hull refused on the grounds Bullitt was needed at his post.

Both Fish and Sen. Reynolds introduced resolutions for congressional questioning of Bullitt and Kennedy.

Bullitt denied the German White Book charges while honor guest at luncheon yesterday in the Capitol building with half a dozen members of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Work for Dance

DANCE AHEAD—Dorothy Blood (top) and Josephine Canniff are members of committee in charge of dance which will be held by Models Club at Westminster Hotel tomorrow night.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Woman Bookie Pays Off in Fine

Money she lost on the horses and attempted to recoup by booking bets of others cost Mrs. Ruth Frost, alias Fiest, 44, of Commonwealth ave., Brighton, $25 today in Brighton district court.

Judge Robert W. Frost found her guilty of being concerned in a lottery and of registering bets. He imposed the fine on the first count and filed the second.

Sergt. Joseph F. Condon testified that when he entered Mrs. Frost's apartment two telephones were ringing as people called to place bets. He said Mrs. Frost told him:

"I lost a lot of money on the horses and thought I would go into business and get it back."

Tiny Maine Infant Dies in Incubator

GARDINER, Me., April 3—A 2¼-pound boy, kept alive for two days in a home-made incubator among quart jars of warm water, was dead here today.

The baby, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Pratt of Bowdoinham, died at Gardiner Hospital.

Dr. Wheeler Heads N. E. Optometrists

The New England Council of Optometrists started a new year today after re-electing Dr. Jesse Wheeler of Hartford, Ct., as president.

Other officers re-elected were Dr. John H. Bonney of Boston, first vice-president, Dr. Russell W. Johnson of Stratford, Ct., 2d vice-president and Curtis R. Wells of Boston, secretary-treasurer.

Newly elected president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Council is Mrs. Raymond Richards, of Melrose.

Gas Tanks Add To Flood Peril

WILKES BARRE, Pa., April 3 (INS) — New fear struck Wilkes-Barre today as two gasoline tanks broke from their moorings in the river road section and spilled 8000 gallons into the flood-swollen Susquehanna. Police ordered all fires extinguished and banned smoking in the neighborhood.

An unofficial estimate placed the damage loss at more than $10,000,000 as the swollen Susquehanna receded more than an inch an hour during the night.

Britain Sets Trade Terms for Neutrals

By ROBERT C. NIXON

LONDON, April 3 (INS)—Although official circles declined to comment, it was reported in London diplomatic circles today that Britain has delivered a series of memorandums to Germany's neutral neighbors laying down Britain "terms" for future trade.

The memorandums, it was stated, paralleled the pronouncement made before the House of Commons yesterday by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and were considered tantamount to an order to neutral nations in Europe to "choose between Britain and the Nazis."

Two British Killed In German Air Raid

LONDON, April 3 INS)—Two civilians and a uniformed soldier were wounded by shell splinters during the latest German aerial attack upon the British naval base at Scapa Flow, it was disclosed today.

WARNS OF QUICK NAZI PUSH

By PIERRE J. HUSS

BERLIN, April 3 (INS)—A prediction of a quick German blow in the west and unshaken confidence that Germany will win the war to regain her position as the "most powerful empire in the world" were voiced by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering today in a nation-wide radio broadcast.

"A decisive blow must be struck in the west," Goering declared. "For this blow the Fuehrer has mobilized all our resources.

"Our enemies, trying to prevent the reconstruction of Germany, frivolously started the war to destroy us.

"Fate, acting through us, has given the answer to that wickedness. They shall learn now what it means to attack the German people."

Pointing to the speed with which Germany's forces vanquished Poland, Goering declared:

"Part of our enemies were smashed in the unbelievably short time of 18 days by powerful German blows.

"Our other enemies may note that we have not become weaker, but stronger. We will give the same demonstration when the time is ripe and show that Germany has decided to end the war.

"Germany's rear and flanks are free and the iron block of our defense forces faces the French and British on the west.

"There the decision must fall.

"All our forces have been called up for this. If everyone fulfills his duty, the decision can bring only a German victory."

Goering broadcast to a meeting of the Hitler air youth in Berlin. His address was relayed to youth meetings, schools and workshops throughout the country.

PARIS, April 3 (AP)—A French government spokesman commenting on Field Marshal Goering's declaration that "the decisive blow must be struck" in the West, said today, "We are ready for just such a possibility."

'Forgotten Girls' At Trans-Lux

"Forgotten Girls," the new offering starting Friday at the Trans-Lux Theater, concerns the problem of a young girl drawn into a network of crime through the circumstances of her environment.

Convicted by an overwhelming army of circumstantial evidence of a crime of which she is innocent, Judy Wingate, portrayed by Louise Platt, goes to a model women's prison. She is pathetically happy in this institution, where for the first time in her life she has a cheerful room of her own and an opportunity to study and learn.

Donald Woods plays opposite Miss Platt, Wynne Gibson portrays Miss Platt's mother, Robert Armstrong, Jack LaRue and Eduardo Ciannelli, three of the screen's most sinister gentlemen, play the underworld friends of Miss Gibson.

The co-feature, "The Werewolf of London," is one of those eerie thrillers with a cast of very competent performers.

Symphony to Play Mass in B Minor

Bach's Mass in B minor, unheard here since the spring of 1935, will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor, for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund, at Symphony Hall, on Sunday afternoon and evening, April 21.

The combined choruses of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will join the orchestra.

'Forgotten Girl'

LOUISE PLATT (above) who plays "Judy Wingate" in "Forgotten Girls" which starts Friday at the Trans-Lux.

Jimmy Shields Tops RKO Bill

Jimmy Shields, handsome young singing star of the Fibber McGee and Molly radio program, will top the new stage show coming to the RKO Boston theater tomorrow. The two screen attractions will offer "The Lone Wolf Strikes," with Warren William and Joan Perry in the feature roles, and Gene Autry in "Boots and Saddles," with Judith Allen, a first-run film.

Since coming to the United States from Canada and making his first radio appearance over a Buffalo station three years ago, Jimmy Shields has had a sensational rise in the radio world. He appeared on two leading coast-to-coast programs before Fibber McGee and Molly brought him to Hollywood for the featured singing spot on their popular program.

Helene Denizon, America's own Pavlowa, prima ballerina of the Radio City Music Hall, assisted by Andrew, Dewald and Madeline, an outstanding dancing trio of the show world, will fill second headline position on the bill.

Met Gives 'Grapes Of Wrath' Schedule

The first show at the Metropolitan Theater will commence at 9:45 a. m., with doors opened at 9:30 a. m., each week day during the showing of "The Grapes of Wrath" and "The Farmer's Daughter," the two new films opening tomorrow.

ROSE LA ROSE STARS IN LIVELY NEW PROGRAM AT GLOBE

Comedy Also Spices Program

Rose La Rose, which sounds like something Gertrude Stein made up out of her own head a while back, is nothing of the sort.

Burlesque addicts know her well, as a dynamic personality, whose name seconds her rich and rosy charm and whose dance creations have a wild and exotic flavor.

Surrounding her are a bevy of prettiest, headed by Margie France, Diane Shaw, Gloria Gayle and the indispensable 30 dancing Bernardolls.

But this new traveling burlesque show, starting Friday at the Globe is not minus on the comedy side. Ringleader in the hilarity department is that favorite of the burlesque circuit, Charles Country. He is supported by a gang of funsters including Lew Block, George Schiller, Harry Ryan and Billy Fields.

The show, which promises to carry on to a cascade of chuckles, will also boast the Singing Ambassadors and Edna Julian, vocal mystery, held over for a third week.

Other vaudevillians featured will be Ross and Taylor, Bates and Brooks and a special program of varieties.

The screen program will include "Prisoner of Shark Island" and "While New York Sleeps."

And don't forget tomorrow night's show closing the current revue headed by Myrna Deane and Charles "Red" Marshall. It will have for an added attraction the weekly radio amateurs' audition.

Gala Menorah Benefit Near

One of Boston's biggest all-star revues will occupy the Colonial stage Sunday evening when the Menorah Institute will give its annual benefit.

Stars of current stage, radio and night club shows, as well as a delegation of New York radio, night club and screen celebrities, have volunteered their talents to make the forthcoming production the biggest and best in the organization's history.

Hy Fine and Robert Sternburg head the entertainment committee, which is a roll-call of New England's leading showmen. Harry Kalus, general chairman, is being assisted by Dr. J. Cushner, Philip Markell, Joseph Silverman, Harry McDonald, Al Somerby, Jack Goodwin, John Bennett, George Munroe, Barnet Welansky, Michael Redstone, Louis Walters, Paul Dennish, Ross Frisco and Joseph and Max Schneider.

Hollywood Changes Sheean's Story

Vincent Sheean's "Personal History" is to have a new title and an entirely new story, according to announcement from Hollywood where it is in production under Walter Wanger's auspices.

The depression, wars in a half-dozen countries and lightning-like changes in the map of Europe have made attempts to accurately picturize the original story impossible.

Carole Lombard In Heroine Role

Carole Lombard, recently seen in "Vigil in the Night," RKO Radio's film dramatization of the Dr. A. J. Cronin novel, is to do a third picture for this studio, "Unbreakable Mrs. Doll." It is a novel by Grace Perkins, wife of Liberty Editor Fulton Oursler, and the heroine experiences amazing adventures in floods desert drouths, gunfights and more than one whirlwind romance.

'Brother Rat and Baby' at Bowdoin

"Brother Rat and a Baby," an amusing screen comedy starring Priscilla Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan and 14-month-old Peter B. Good, is now showing on Bowdoin Square screen.

The second feature, "British Intelligence," teams Boris Karloff and Margaret Lindsay.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

'La Gioconda' Evokes Bravos

By LEO GAFFNEY

The dagger-belted Venetians, with their poison cups and handy street-corner mailbox for the Inquisition, took the stage of the Boston Opera House last night, giving "La Gioconda" as it should be given—which is to say good and loud.

It was the audience's dish. And they fairly ate it up, shouted "bravo" at all the bravuras, then drifted into smoky promenades to talk it over between acts.

The champagne business on the second floor was good, too. (This afternoon's matinee being "Lohengrin," the Wagnerians will probably be beery in choice.)

"La Gioconda" was the first of the Metropolitan's shows here this year not to sell out, though you couldn't detect vacancies at first glance. And, surely, the audience was as demonstrative as any.

They yelled for Martinelli; cheered the American baritone, Leonard Warren; lustily applauded Zinka Milanov, visually charming and vocally exciting Gioconda—operatic heroine, with the distinction of being betrayed by two men.

Anything was possible in 17th Century Venice—even the story of "La Gioconda," though the audience never seems to take any interest in the vicious plots and counter-plots, stabbings, drugged cups, lovers' infidelities—not to mention the rapscallion that murders his desired one's poor blind mother.

Ettore Panizza conducted wisely and well.

DORRIS BOWDON and Eddie Quillan in a scene from "Grapes of Wrath," opening on the Met screen tomorrow. The film is from John Steinbeck's novel of the same name.

Fonda Heads Brilliant Cast

"The Grapes of Wrath," Twentieth Century-Fox film version of John Steinbeck's best-seller, is to have its first Hub showing on the Metropolitan screen, starting tomorrow.

The companion film on the new double-feature program will be "The Farmer's Daughter," Paramount comedy co-starring Martha Raye and Charles Ruggles.

The motion picture version of Steinbeck's arresting novel, "The Grapes of Wrath," was widely acclaimed at its world premiere at New York's Rivoli Theater, where it broke records during its five-week run.

Henry Fonda plays the dogged, fighting Tom Joad and Jane Darwell, the great-souled Ma Joad, who battled to hold her homeless family together. The lean and saturnine John Carradine is cast as Casey, the crusader preacher. Charles Grapewin is Grampa and Dorris Bowdon, the much sought role of the girl, Rosasharn.

Others in the spectacular cast include Russell Simpson, as Pa Joad, O. Z. Whitehead as Al, John Qualen as Muley, Zeffie Tilbury as Grandma and Eddie Quillan as Connie.

Academy Award Winner John Ford directed and Nunnally Johnson, who wrote the screen play, worked closely with Steinbeck and conferred with him on the completed script in his capacity as associate producer.

The increasingly popular "straw-hat" theater inspired the new Martha Raye-Charlie Ruggles comedy "The Farmer's Daughter." Supporting players are headed by Gertrude Michael, Richard Denning, William Frawley and Betty McLaughlin. Lewis Foster wrote the screen play. James Hogan directed.

THE DECISION of the Boston School Committee to sponsor the serving of hot lunches to undernourished children at John A. Andrew school hardly requires praise.

It is a kindly and sensible gesture which speaks for itself.

Sons and daughters of destitute parents need good food as much as do the children of more fortunate fathers and mothers.

Nature, despite man-made depressions and poverty in the midst of plenty, has yet to make a distinction between the "haves" and the "have-nots."

Young bodies still grow by the same processes. Young minds still develop along the same lines. And a deficient diet that is apt to cause wealthy Johnny Jones to lag behind other students cannot be expected to have a more favorable effect on Jimmy Smith, son of a relief recipient.

Recognizing this and providing a well-balanced meal for poor boys and girls, Mayor Tobin and members of the School Committee are making an investment that has all the earmarks of sound, intelligent economy.

They are facing the fact that ill-fed children are often dull children who, through no fault of their own, are obliged to remain two and three years in one grade.

They are making the task of the teacher easier by giving her more alert pupils and thus enabling her to direct her attention to the whole class rather than to a small group of hunger-induced laggards.

And, what is probably of even greater value, they are attacking at the source such diseases as tuberculosis which thrive on privation and which often mean long and expensive confinement in hospitals and sanitariums maintained by the taxpayers.

As we see it, the serving of healthy, substantial food to needy school children is more than a democratic experiment. It is a conception of public responsibility which may some day be universally regarded as a necessary and important part of the American educational system.

There is every reason to believe that lunches could be served at cost to ALL elementary and high school students. Such meals are available in many cities for as little as five cents per pupil.

The venture is one which municipal officials everywhere might well study and possibly undertake.

NEW SPRING HATS, often ridiculed and frequently condemned by unsympathetic gentlemen, have an enthusiastic defender in the person of Professor A. R. Lauer of Iowa State College.

In an address to the recent Boston congress of the New England Council of Optometrists, Professor Lauer said:

"Hats now being worn by women are ideal for those who operate motor cars because they do not interfere with vision. Undoubtedly they are responsible for the prevention of many a possible accident."

We are inclined to agree with the distinguished visitor from the Middle West.

Unlike our fellows, we do not laugh when we see a woman placing three roses or a bouquet of violets on her head and calling the floral display a hat.

TODAY'S SMALL HAT
Wins Science's Approval

Common sense tells us that the wearer of such headgear is a lot more comfortable than her mother or older sister was 20 years ago, when a hat was a veritable flower or vegetable garden, extravagantly garnished with plumes, aigrettes, pompons, tulle, lace and yards of veil.

Certainly no woman with such a complex and intricate chapeau flopping in the wind and concealing her face could expect to drive an automobile with any reasonable hope of avoiding injury to herself or to others.

There is another argument in favor of the 1940 hat which Professor Lauer does not mention, but which we deem important. The 1940 hat enhances a woman's natural beauty by focusing attention on her better features.

Knowing this, Miss and Mrs. America are mentally uplifted, and thus encouraged to be alert. This, too, is conducive to safe driving.

MONEY FOR FINLAND will continue to be solicited in Massachusetts. This is proper; there should be no let-down in the commendable activity.

The war is over (temporarily at least) in Finland, BUT THE MISERY HAS JUST BEGUN.

A dollar for Finland is a dollar for a child or a woman in a land that has done no harm to any but which has, by common consent, been outraged by a brutal, ruthless power without the shadow of a legitimate excuse.

The Keyboard

LILY hands gently caressing, touching the ivory keys . . . tapering fingers pressing, to call forth melodies . . . melodies dreamed by the masters—Mendelsohn, Wagner, Mozart . . . melodies born of the people, melodies reaching the heart! . . . And the vibrant strings in their wonder at the player's caprice and mood . . . respond with the crash of thunder or a dreamy interlude.

But when on Life's ivory keyboard our own awkward fingers we lay . . . too often we get but dire discord, try for better effects though we may . . . Then again comes a chord unexpected—a celestial harmony . . . to remind us how fully perfected, how rich and sublime life can be.

Paul T. Gilbert.

SCOTTY DOGS are polite to all members of the family but center their affections on one person. Our pup loves everybody but loves my girl friend more than anybody else. A very discerning dog . . . At the San Francisco Fair showing of a Caesarian operation many men fainted—but only one woman. More and more we are reluctantly forced to believe that "clinging vine" manner of the female sex is just an act.

A TRAVELER says while he was in England he heard an old lady in a London tram say: "I do wish that man Hitler would marry and settle down" . . . I know a man who makes $250 a week and sometimes more by cashing checks for people after banking hours. Why did they stop having night and day banks?

IN PRESIDENTIAL campaigns of the past 40 years Charles B. Hughes has been the only before-election betting favorite to lose. The 1916 election was so close it was not known for certain until the Friday after election day that Hughes had lost and Wilson had won . . . "Santa is used for female saints as in Santa Barbara, Santa Monica and Santa Maria," writes a Seattle customer. "And San is used for male saints as in San Gabriel, San Francisco and San Jose. Therefore I am puzzled about Santa Claus."

WHEN will women get some conversational substitutes for their overworked "cute," "adorable" and "thrilling." And for their saccharine salutations "My Dear!!" and "Darling!!" Many women need smoking lessons, too. Most of them don't even know how to hold a cigarette and their smoking manners are terrible. Maybe that educator was right when he said the men of today have been sadly neglecting the training of their women.

CIGARETTE SMOKING IN THE HOLLYWOOD MANNER
Would Marlene Dietrich Escape Columnist's Censure?

ONLY ONE STORE in 20 having pay telephones has a telephone booth. Gentlemen, this must not go on. Let us inaugurate a campaign for more telephone booths. A young fellow calling the object of his affections doesn't want the whole world to listen in on his message of love. Nor does he wish to run a high blood pressure saying over the phone: "I can't hear you, Sugar," there's too much noise in the store." What does a telephone booth cost, anyhow?

NO PRESIDENT of the United States has been born in the West. Nor has any President's wife been Western born. What's the explanation? And why doesn't the West do something about it . . Buchanan was the only bachelor President. W. H. Harrison had the largest family, ten children . . . Of the 32 Presidents so far, 22 have been lawyers. Why not give a newspaper man a chance at it? Vandenberg, for instance . . . Jefferson and Lincoln did not claim membership in any church. It is said that Benjamin Harrison was the first President who was an actual member of a church . . . Most Presidents have been of English descent. After that Scotch-Irish.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- -:- MY DAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 3—Our trip on the way down here was uneventful. No floods to detain us. Except for one young boy, we had no visitors in our drawing room. He came in very diffidently and handed me a piece of silver wrapping which smelled strongly of the chocolate it had once contained, and asked if I would write on it because it was all he could find and his sister wanted an autograph.

While our berths were being made up, we went into the lounge car and a group of rather youngish men were evidently returning after the close of the State Legislature to their various districts and celebrating the end of their arduous labors on the way.

ONE YOUNG man who passed us returned to inquire if I was Mrs. Roosevelt, and we chatted for a few minutes about his first term in the legislature. His friends were very insistent that he return to them and I think they probably thought that two old ladies had corralled him and were trying to keep him from spending a pleasant evening.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Legislator Recognizes Her

I see that the Governor of California may call the legislature back in extra session because of the needs of the flooded regions, so perhaps they were celebrating their liberty too soon.

Jimmy's car met us this morning at the station and we went straight to the Hotel Biltmore for breakfast in the coffee shop and then to the press room for a press conference. By 10:30 we were at Jimmy's apartment and, sad to say, we found that he will not be able to join us here. I am still hoping to see him before I leave the West Coast, but in spite of being very comfortable I miss him as host in his own house.

Plenty of mail greeted us and we were kept busy for an hour making plans for the next three days and sorting out what mail awaited us. All the work I did was to sign letters which came from Washington and then I started out to do some errands which ended up in Olvera Street. I could not be here and not at least walk through that street, for I am always interested to see how people there are getting on.

WE STOPPED at one little stand, attracted by the pretty pottery jars and the different kinds of orange jelly and marmalade, of which I sent some home. Mrs. Sterling came to greet us and walk the rest of the way with us. Then we hurried back to write this column.

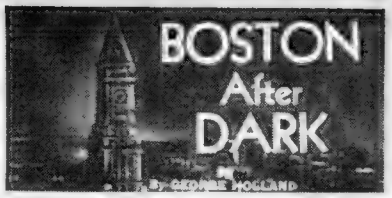
ABE LYMAN: Your agent has signed you for an engagement at the Park Central's Cocoanut Grove next month . . . TONY MARTIN: Kay Williams, the model whose name has been linked with yours, is awaiting the arrival of Macoco, her South American suitor . . . Another of Miss Williams' swains was warned: "You haven't got a chance against Macoco, he'll monopolize all her time—because he has three million dollars." . . . "Not all her time," the Romeo stated. "With all that dough he must take time off to count."



ONCE OVER LIGHTLY (with questions): Will it be Hurley for Governor and Curley for Senator—or vice versa? . . . Whichever is the lineup, if either, the announcement awaits that Supreme Court decision on the Graves-Curley item of litigation . . . And—what CAN be holding THAT up? . . . Howard Johnson dropped the news in the course of one of his infrequent jaunts around the nightclub belt that a bundle of Johnson money has gone to the fair Betty Grable in a matter of business . . . An omen of summer: Jack Eastman's Studio Inn at Nantasket has been taken over by the painters and carpenters.

A SOUTH BOSTON LAD, who is on the payroll of another dog track, has been optioning land directly across the road from the Dighton dog track—in Taunton . . . For a dog track? Officials say "yes."

OUR PRESIDENT may not have broken the news about his plan to be drafted for a third-term to the members of his immediate family . . . But he told a favorite in-law all about it and the very next day we passed the news along . . . The story appeared the day B. C. and B. U. met on the gridiron—to save us thumbing through the files when it happens

NEARLY AS FUNNY as the Ritz Brothers before Darryl Zanuck wore them out are Lane, Edwards and Allen at the Brown Derby . . . And when songs are sung better than Tess Gardell sings them—the singer will never know want . . . Tess and the trio are featured at Kitty Brando's . . . Pretty Ruth Petty comes to the Mayfair tonight, and Billy de Wolfe, a Quincy boy with a pack of talent, returns to the same spot . . . Mr. de Wolfe (whose brother is Trooper J. Jones of the State Police) will preside as master of ceremonies until Ranny Weeks comes home Friday.

YOUNG JIMMY LYNCH who served as office boy to a New York theatrical executive without revealing that he knew more about show-business than his boss (whose initials were G. H.) is marking time in Boston as stager of musical tabloids for a circuit . . . The Lynch lad is in line for a New York musical comedy directorial berth, and it may be Sam H. Harris' next.

THE MOST DISILLUSIONING ITEM we have read recently in connection with the "sport of kings" is the story of Saturday's auction of running-horses at Tropical Park . . . Top price was $825 . . . But a steed named Guild went under the hammer for $30 . . . Your correspondent remembers backing the animal's chances in a New England race last year for more than the sum (it was a "good" day) poor Guild brought on the block . . . Another router went for $80, and two weeks ago he was entered in a $1250 claiming race . . . So—a mild idea may be gained from such information, the prospects for success a novice has in the racing game . . . I mean as an owner . . . Who would have the nerve to insult a horseman with a $30 offer for a horse entered in a "cheap" $1000 claiming race, for instance?

BOBBY "MISSISSIPPI" RUSSELL of the clocking fraternity is supervising a bachelor dinner to be held at the Copley Plaza Hotel in celebration of the stepping-off of a friend named James Rogers . . . Mr. Rogers is marrying a Lynn girl, Miss Ray Rodman . . . As the dinner is scheduled for April 15, and Narragansett opens

COLMAN PLANS NEW THEATER

By Louella O. Parsons

Ronald Colman

EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, April 3.—Well, here I am speeding to New York via TWA which is a fine place to be thinking of the "George White Scandals." But I just happened to catch the show the night before I left. If ever a show should be playing to "standing room only" it is this swell revue—but definitely Los Angeles is not a good theater town. George told me that business everywhere else had been much better. Maybe the long drive downtown has something to do with the reluctance of Hollywood folk to leave their own fireside.

Evidently Ronald Colman had the same thought for now a film group, headed by Ronnie, is planning to build a theater in Westwood. The original idea is to put on one play a month. So far the project hasn't advanced beyond the confab stage but a number of our well known movie players including Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Marc Connelly and others are interested.

JUDY STEWART

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Henry Hathaways are seriously thinking of adopting a baby; George Raft explaining baseball to Norma Shearer's young son, Irving Thalberg, Jr., at the Gilmore Stadium; saw Dorothy Lamour dancing at Ciro's with Wynn Rocamoro but that was just a business engagement. Dorothy and Bob Preston are really looking altarward; Margaret Sullavan brought her young daughter, Brooke, out to the "Mortal Storm" set and later she and Jimmy Stewart treated the young debutante to lunch in the commissary; Bert Wheeler flew in from New York and was glimpsed at the Grace Hayes lodge with a beauty named Edith Simon; Ann Ronnell, talented wife of Lester Cowan, at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital with laryngitis; Mary Carlisle and Sam Sutphin, Indianapolis socialite, a Beverly Brown Derby luncheon pair; Rudy Vallee and his old flame, Judy Stewart, taking up where they left off; Barbara Bennett Downey has rented her home in Greenwich Village and will probably remain here. Also saw her at Ciro's with the Sayle Taylors. She reports that Morton is much better, the Olivia De Havilland-Jimmie Stewart romance really looks serious. They were at the Cocoanut Grove; sitting near them was Loretta Young.

CERTAINLY THE TITLE "The Dealer's Name Was George" is a nifty one and that's what Hal Wallis thought when he bought this original story from Kitty Frang. What could be nicer now than to put George Raft into the picture bearing his name—and that's just what Warners intend to do as soon as he finishes "The Long Haul." I talked with Hal just before I left for New York and he says he is changing the title of "The Long Haul" to "They Drive by Night" which is infinitely better. You needn't be surprised if the "oomph" girl, Ann Sheridan, co-stars with George in the latter epic.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

HE PACED nervously up and down in front of the bank, doing his best to appear nonchalant; but as the time lengthened his nervousness increased. Tony had said five minutes OF four—and here it was five minutes AFTER four.

The policeman on the corner was watching him curiously; closely. He saw an ordinary young man, neatly dressed, clean-looking . . . "I wonder why he's so nervous," he was musing, "I wonder . . ."

THE YOUNG MAN suddenly felt the eyes of the policeman boring into him; he noticed that passersby were beginning to stare at him. He began to tremble—his whole body.

He stopped his pacing and took up his stand near the door of the bank, striving vainly to steady his limbs.

"After all," he thought to himself, "there always has to be a first time . . . But what if I lose my nerve? What will the boys say? What will they DO?"

He continued his pacing. He glanced at his watch—eight minutes past four . . . ten minutes past . . . "What if they don't show up? What will I do? What if . . . ?" He glanced cautiously at the policeman, but colored and averted his eyes when the policeman met his gaze.

"WHAT IF," the young man whispered aloud, "what . . . ?"—he started—"there they are!" he exclaimed aloud.

Then, shaking violently, his face blazing, the young man stumbled stiffly forward to meet the broadly-grinning Tony and two giggling, gaudily-dressed girls advancing towards him . . .

The policeman smiled.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOU ARE LONELY. You have been lonely all your life. Even with many people around you in laughing, lighted places you are lonely. Even when you are doing the thing you like best, and with the one you love most, you are lonely.

It startles you to read those words. You had thought they were your hidden secret. How did I guess this thing about you?

I guessed it because I am that way, too. We are all that way.

WE ARE ALL lonely, and we all hate our loneliness. We want "someone who really understands"; someone who can share—really share—our every experience. There is an old verse:

"Men are spirits clad in veils;
"Man by man was never seen;
"All our striving somehow fails
"To lift that which lies between."

Great King David was as lonely as the poorest shepherd on the hills. He wanted someone or something that would always feel close; that would not desert him in his dark times of fear and sorrow and remorse; that would understand him and help him and comfort him.

And for years he sought that someone or something—as you and I have sought. He broke laws. He did wild, wicked things to satisfy that hunger in his heart.

AND AT LAST he did satisfy it. He found—Someone. He found Someone who would never desert him, never misunderstand him.

He found God.

You are lonely? Say that when you are lonely. Go out into some quiet place and be still for a while. Be still until you forget yourself a little and can hear the small voices of life rising all around you. Then say that—and you will be comforted.

THE FIRST April Shower in 1940 was not the usual wet drizzle we associate with early spring . . . but a merry tea party and shower for Joan Tozzer, national women's figure skating champion . . .

The party, at which Mrs. Carl W. Gram of Dedham was hostess yesterday afternoon, was a complete surprise to Joan who wasn't the least bit suspicious that it was a shower until she was told to stand under a huge umbrella . . . Then each guest was given a ribbon to pull and these released a veritable downpour of gayly-wrapped packages containing personal gifts for her trousseau . . .

Joan, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Alfred M. Tozzer of Cambridge, has won all sorts of national honors in championship skating both before and since romance skated into her life in the person of Philip E. Spalding, Jr., of Honolulu . . . She met him last summer while visiting her grandmother, Mrs. George P. Castle of Hawaii . . .

The bride-to-be is sailing from San Francisco May 31, to make final plans for the wedding which is tentatively set for July 12 in Honolulu . . . She is a graduate of Shady Hill School and completes her course at May-Brimmer this year . . .

Guests at yesterday's party included many of her classmates and a group of friends from the Boston Skating Club . . . Among them were Polly Blodgett, Lucy Pope, Mary O'Day, Mary Favorite, both of whom will be debutantes next year, Dorothy Glazier, Jean Kiley, Mary Louise Collier and the two daughters of the hostess, Alberta and Gloria Gram . . .

Kay Baker Weds Saturday

KAY BAKER of Belmont and her fiance, Malcolm T. Curtiss, Jr., of Hingham, are principals in a miniature social whirl this week preceding their wedding Saturday in the First Unitarian Church, Belmont . . . Kay, a popular debutante of 1933-34, is having her cousin, Cornelia Baker, of Brookline, and Miss Em Bowles Locker of Richmond, Va., as bridesmaids . . . Ransome Van Brunt Lynch of Hingham will be the best man . . .

The usher group will include Robert Lee Wolff, Johnston Kingsley, Elek John Ludvigh 2nd and Andrew Hughes Addoms, Jr. . . . Mr. Ludvigh and his wife are entertaining at a cocktail party for the couple preceding a buffet supper party given by Mrs. Oliver Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Wolff . . . Miss Nancy Clark will be hostess at the rehearsal dinner and Mr. and Mrs. George Defren (Peggy Lamson) will also entertain for the couple . . .

Mr. Curtiss, a Harvard '37 graduate, will take his bride South for a honeymoon, following which they will live at 78 South St., Hingham . . . Miss Baker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holbrook Baker of Belmont . . .

Benefit for Scholarship Fund

SARAH LAWRENCE GRADUATES in Boston are busy spreading the news of an April recital to benefit their scholarship fund . . . The affair, to be presented by the Chorus and Dance group of the college, will be held at Beaver Country Day School, Wednesday evening, April 24 . . .

Barbara Fulton, who has just returned from a six weeks' southern trip, met with her sister "alums" at a tea the other afternoon at 270 Dartmouth st. to go over plans for selling tickets and spreading news of the affair . . . Working with her are Polly Cotter, Mrs. Charles Chauncey Buell, Mrs. Horace Guy Crockett, Helen Dean, Barbara Fulton, Mrs. John F. Garfield, Jr., Mrs. Glen Grant, Mrs. Louis McClennen and Mrs. J. Robert Morse . . .

Others on the energetic committee are Mrs. Albert Nickerson, Peggy Paine, Ann Peterson, Mrs. Frederick Taylor, Mrs. Strafford Wentworth, Ann Whiteman, Janet Van Velzen and Alice Ware . . .

SARAH LAWRENCE "grads" go over the music for the spring recital to be presented for the benefit of their scholarship fund. In the group, photographed at a tea at 270 Dartmouth st., are Peggy Paine (seated) of West Newton, Polly Cotter of Cambridge, and Ann Peterson of Brookline, members of the committee sponsoring the program.

Vincent Club Play April 11-13

Virginia Vogel and Marian Minot, both of Brookline, are co-chairmen of Vincent Club members who will usher at "Tonight at Nine," the annual Vincent musical revue to be presented April 11, 12 and 13 at John Hancock Hall.

The usherettes, dressed according to Vincent tradition in lavender frocks with frilly white aprons, will include Eleanor McClurg, Marian Wood, Janet Forbes, Margaret M. Rice, Olivia Vogel, Rosamond Higgins, Janet Eustis, Susan Santry, Mrs. James Holland Beal, Martha Pervere, Jane Donald, Mrs. George H. Waterman, Jr., Leslie Eustis and Josephine L. Murray.

Others include Ethel Febiger, Dorothy MacAusland, Jane Swift, Mary Elizabeth Clarke, Harriet Bundy, Merrill Bunce, Olivia Ames, Anne Whipple, Phyllis Howe, Mary West, Virginia Wright and Faith Thoron.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cryan of Newtonville gave a cocktail party and dinner last evening in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor of Brookline. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Taylor's daughter, Mrs. William Henderson, Celia and Arthur Henderson, Patricia Taylor, Mr and Mrs. Henry Seaver of Mooresstown, N. J., and Mrs. Louis Wheeler of St. Louis.

Will Give Studio Tea

Mrs. Basil Gavin of Medfield will be hostess at a tea in her studio next Tuesday afternoon, April 9th, in honor of the post debs and young society matrons who will be assistants at the opening performance of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, April 16th.

The affair will be a benefit for the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation.

Guests of Mrs. Gavin next Tuesday will include Mrs. H. Thomas Ballantine, Jr., Mrs. Francis G. Jackson, Clara Jackson, Dorothy Storer, Sara T. Weeks, Priscilla Thorndike, Mrs. Thomas Whiteside and Peggy Stuart.

Also Mrs. Edward L. Francis, Lucy D. Cochrane, Mrs. Lincoln Davis, Jr., Mrs. Richard Olney, Mrs. Alfred B. Hallowell and Phyllis Forbes.

Mrs. Oscar Hausserman of Dudley lane, Milton, co-chairman of the benefit, will pour together with Mrs. James R. Hooper, who is closely associated with dance groups in Boston.

Love And Marriage

TOO HUMBLE WITH GIRLS, PERHAPS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I was just out of high school I thought I was in love, but all of a sudden something broke us up. I was heartsick over it until I found out it was because I wasn't good-looking. Since then I've met another girl, who's very sensible, and now I really know what love is.

But now this girl is beginning to change toward me. I don't know why and I can't ask her outright. I think I'll write her a letter, but I can't get beyond "Dear ——." If something doesn't happen soon I'll go crazy. She told me herself, at one time, that she liked me very much. We're both 21 years old and have many things in common. Please tell me how to gain her confidence. I just can't give her up.

JIM.

If there were only space in this column I could give you the names of scores of homely men about whom women have been "crazy," men who have had world-wide reputations as charmers. So, my dear young friend, it can't be your appearance. Perhaps when you go over to see these girls you go too humbly, and no woman can forgive excessive humility on the part of a suitor.

Things have a way of seeming final at 21, but it's only youth and a lack of knowledge about how to play this game we call living. Suppose you let the young lady severely alone for a while. Girls have a way of never realizing they care for a boy until he stops being attentive. My advice is to be more assertive with girls in general.

Social Notes

You Can Be Beautiful

Rout Winter Grime

By ARLINE GOULD

THOUGH THIS is spring, and the air is softening . . . it can still be a blue, blue world . . . if your complexion isn't up to par. If it's so sallow and colorless that even the thrilling new make-ups do nothing for it . . . if it has hideous little blemishes that seem impossible to rout . . . use a beauty wash which calls on all nature's forces to aid in clearing, softening and brightening your complexion!

Scientifically compounded modern aids are combined with such natural beautifiers as dehydrated buttermilk and almond meal, and the result is a powdery, grainy "wash" which has more uses than any other single beauty aid we can think of!

It's to be used instead of soap, or alternating with it . . . and the way it tames down excessive oiliness is marvelous to behold. Since it's this kind of skin that develops the most stubborn blackhead cases, the importance of checking excess oiliness simply cannot be overlooked. Blemishes, deep-seated though they may be, soon bow before the determination of the "wash."

Use it three ways . . . mixed with cleansing cream for an all-purpose deep-pore cleansing and stimulating . . . with a small quantity of water, to "scour" the skin of flakiness or surface blemishes . . . or as a pack to really get at blackheads.

If you'd like to learn about this granular "beauty wash" which clears and softens a winter-grimed complexion, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five-thirty, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DARE to swirl your hair softly and high . . . the becoming, feminine manner of the newer "up do" . . . and pin it with a bow, the way Judith Barrett does . . . but only if your skin is translucently clear, and guiltless of winter grime. If blackheads or excessive oiliness is your problem, Arline Gould offers a solution.

Manners

Dance Frock To Bridge

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

At a dinner and bridge to be given by our company is a recommendation would it be correct for the guests to wear evening dress? The men, of course, will be wearing dinner S. S.

The girls should wear dressy frocks not formal evening dresses to this dinner and I do. The fact that the men are wearing tuxedos means that the occasion is not one of strict formality since if it were, the men would wear tailcoats.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to know if it would be correct for me to telephone a friend to ask her how she feels? Her husband told me that she has been ill. Shall I take her to a theater and to a tea room after the theater, after she is well? W. G.

Under this circumstance of illness, we must be very sure that it will not be inconvenient or uncomfortable for the person to talk on the telephone. If we think it will be, we should write a note of good wishes and hope for a speedy recovery.

If the friend is a close friend, you may wish to send her a box of flowers or a book or some fruit, with the friendly note. I'm sure that she would very much appreciate this generous thought of yours, to offer her such pleasant relaxation after her illness

ALKALIZE with a

REFRESHING SPARKLING MINERAL "HEALTH COCKTAIL"

Cheney's New ALKAL-IN-IZER

A spoonful in a glass of water makes an effervescent, bubbling drink of mineral rich water.

First Aid to Colds and an Ideal Corrector of

- Overeating
- Run Down Condition
- Overdrinking
- Rheumatic Symptoms
- Hyper-Acidity
- Mineral Deficiency

Cheney's ALKAL-IN-IZER is a mineral food and body alkalizer, laboratory prepared, containing in proper balance the minerals needed by the human body.

It Contains

Gluconate of Lime: A calcium compound organically assimilable which supplements the modern table diet so often robbed of organic minerals and deficient in Lime.

MINERAL STARVED BODIES

Remember — Calcium salts make up more than 50% of all mineral elements of the body, and assimilable lime is essential to re-mineralize the system.

It has been found that lime does more than form a sturdy bone and sound teeth. It has many other uses in building up the soft tissues body fluids and the blood stream. A certain percentage of calcium is needed in the blood stream. While proper foods and the natural functions of the body go a long way to preserve this calcium reserve, unfortunately lime-exhausted bodies are too common.

Lime Gluconate is more acceptable and tolerated than any other form of Lime.

Cheney's Alkal-in-izer Also Contains

Soda, Magnesia and Potassium compounds in combination with fruit acids which add to the anti-acid properties in overcoming excess acidity of the stomach and as a neutralizer of excessive acid urine. Alkalizer is indicated in treatment of peptic ulcer, during pregnancy and before and after operations.

Has Properties of Mineral Waters

A spoonful of Cheney's ALKAL-IN-IZER makes a glass of mineral water equivalent in its content of sulphuric to the waters of famous health spas and resorts. It can be used three to 6 times a day

Fine Desserts for Children

By MARTHA LEE

CHILDREN LOVE desserts—and desserts frequently offer an excellent way to serve the daily quota of necessary foods like milk, eggs, fruits, cereals, etc., in disguised form.

The surest way of putting the Evil Eye on a dish, however, is to mention to the youngsters that it is "good" for them. So, if you are trying to get across an important food in the guise of dessert—never in the world breathe that it is a perfect sweet for children.

PRUNE MALLOW

20 marshmallows
2½ tbsp. water
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 5-oz. can strained prunes
½ pint whipping cream, whipped

Combine the marshmallows, water and lemon juice in the top part of a double boiler. Heat until marshmallows are melted. Then add the strained prunes. Cool until it stiffens slightly, then fold in the whipped cream. Freeze without stirring.

Note: This dessert is also good when chilled just enough to stiffen without freezing.

UNCOOKED FRUIT WHIP
(Serves 2)

½ cup whipping cream, whipped
¼ cup sugar
½ 5-oz. can strained prunes, or
½ 4½-oz. can strained apricots and applesauce
1 tsp. lemon juice

Whip cream, then fold in combined sugar, strained fruit and lemon juice. Pile into dessert glasses and chill.

This dessert is so light and nourishing it couldn't possibly upset a child. It's good either hot or cold.

CHOCOLATE CARAMEL CUSTARD

½ cup sugar
1-3 cup water
1 square unsweetened chocolate
2 cups milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla

Melt sugar in a small, heavy skillet over moderate heat, and continue heating until a smooth, light brown syrup is formed, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add water; then cook until caramel is entirely dissolved. Place 1½ tablespoons of caramel syrup in each custard cup.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine eggs, sugar and salt; add chocolate mixture gradually, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and pour into prepared custard cups. Place in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 60 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean. (Water in pan should not reach boiling temperature.) Unmold and serve warm or chilled.

BAKED APPLES AND PRUNES

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

INGREDIENTS

6 large, firm red apples
1 c. granulated sugar
1 c. water
2 tbsp. granulated sugar
6 prunes
6 cooked prunes

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Core the apples, then pare them about one-third the way down from the stem end, and arrange in a shallow baking dish. Boil the 1 c. sugar and the water together for 10 min. Pour over the apples. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees F. for about 1 hr., or until tender, basting frequently. Insert a cooked prune in the top of each apple, sprinkle the peeled surface of each with 1 tsp. sugar. Place the pan of apples under the broiler heat. Baste them frequently and watch them carefully until the sugar has melted and the peeled section is a delicate brown. Serve hot or cold, with plain or whipped cream. Serves 6. To serve 3 or 3, make ½ this recipe. If desired, the apple parings may be cooked with the sugar and water to give the syrup some color. Afterward, remove the parings.

SERVE with pork roast, baked stuffed sweet potatoes and string beans for dinner.

FAMILY PICTURE

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By NORAH SMARIDGE

HER mother-in-law's letter fell to the table, among the debris of the five breakfasts. Involuntarily, Mary laughed; the sound shocked her . . . there was hysteria in it.

But there was an exquisite irony about that letter, arriving, as it did, when she had definitely made up her mind to leave Hugh.

The Cast of Characters in "Family Picture"

MARY, who plans to divorce

JOHN, a husband who can't resist the charms of other women.

ELAINE, John's most recent heart-throb.

"You ask me what I want for my birthday," Martha Beresford had written. "Well, it's a family picture. None of your snaps, or candid-camera shots. I want that big-old-fashioned kind, to stand on my piano. Something I'll be able to see in my old age, without squinting . . ."

The banter concealed pride. Martha's glowing pride in her son's family.

Martha was such a darling. Mary moved to clear the table, her hands unsteady. No one could have had a more understanding mother-in-law. She remembered that day, years and years ago, when Hugh had first taken her to meet his mother.

"Aren't you astonished, mother?" he had demanded, his blue eyes dancing over Mary's square, sturdy little figure. "Tell the truth . . . you expected a slim blonde nit-wit!"

His mother had smiled at Mary, saying nothing. Later, though, she had taken her aside.

"Hugh's a very lucky man, my dear. I hope you'll be happy." She had sighed. "But it won't be easy for you . . . he's too attractive, like his father. And . . . and responsive . . ."

"To women? Oh, I know that. Hugh adores beauty." Mary had answered with all the quick confidence of her 20 years. "But he loves me. I can manage!"

She winced now, remembering. She had managed for 12 long years. But it had been harder than she dreamed it would be.

A MAN OF WAX

Hugh was wax in the hands of a pretty woman. And he met so many, as a popular illustrator.

Most of his affairs were fleeting enough. Temporary attractions, during which Mary set her teeth and waited. Because he won't always come back to her, shame-faced. Wanting his wife and children, and peace.

He was 40 now, and she 35. It was time for them to settle down, to have some dignity and stability in their lives.

It looked as if that might happen . . . as if Mary had won out at last. Until, quite suddenly, Elaine Lee had come into Hugh's life, with everything that his wife lacked. Youth, vitality, spectacular beauty.

Only three days ago she had seen them together in town. Elaine driving Hugh in her car . . .

It had meant the end, for Mary. This time the other woman could have him. She would leave. She would take the children up to Montreal, to her parents. Quietly, without fuss. From there she would write to Hugh and tell him they were never coming back.

First, though, Martha must have her picture. Slowly, Mary went into the hall to telephone. She'd ask John's private-school teacher to tell him to meet his mother at the photographer's. She'd keep Joan home at midday . . . and Sue could get her nap in before they went.

Mr. Conningford was delighted to hear Mary's voice.

"A family group? It'll be a pleasure . . . you've got the most photogenic family in town, Mrs. Beresford. And family pictures are coming in again . . . with wasp waists and bustles!"

She didn't tell him it was for her mother-in-law. Instead, she called Hugh's office.

"Yes, what is it?" He sounded nervy, strung-up. Then, when he knew it was she, his tone changed. "Oh, it's you, dear!"

"I want you to meet us at the photographer's at 3:30," she began to explain, her heart pounding suddenly.

"A family picture!". He chuckled. "But, of course . . . if it's what she wants. Just a minute, though." There was a long pause. When he spoke again, the intimate note had gone. "Yes, I can manage. Three-thirty."

Mary stiffened. Why the pause? Was it Elaine . . . so's arrangement to see her? Was she dropping in at his office this afternoon?

She forced her mind to her preparations, dialling the number of John's school. She mustn't think any more about Hugh.

Dressing Joan and Sue to have their picture taken was a bittersweet performance. They were both so lovely . . . Joan at seven and Sue at three. But so like their father. Slim and vital and effortlessly charming. They had nothing of Mary about them; none of her squareness and sturdiness.

Only John, the nine-year-old, took after her. Quiet, serious, dependable little fellow.

At twenty past three, they were waiting in the photographer's reception room. Joan and Sue, restless on the red leather chair, every hair in place.

"Don't move!" Mary warned. "I'm just going to the door, to look out for John . . . and daddy!"

John should be here by now. She frowned faintly. It wasn't like him to dawdle . . . he knew she worried if he were late from school.

Mary's heart ached. John would miss his father. He adored Hugh so. Inarticulately, from a distance. He wasn't his father's favorite; they were so different.

"Hello, dear!" Hugh himself strode into the photographer's, nodding to the girl behind the reception desk. He swooped down on Joan. "Aren't you gorgeous? And how's sleepy Sue?"

Charming them. Captivating them. And somehow never managing to look like a father, Mary thought.

She went outside again, staring down the street, looking for John.

"Isn't he rather late?" Hugh came and stood beside her. "Not like our model son. Shall I ring up the school?"

"Do." It was all she could say.

FATHER AND SON

He was back in a few minutes.

"Miss Marshall said he'd left a good half-hour ago. I hope nothing happened." He stared down the street. "The traffic's pretty bad at this time . . ."

The photographer stopped, startled. John had fallen to the floor in a dead faint.

"Oh, don't!" Mary gave a little cry. How dare he talk like that . . . how dared he suggest that anything might happen to John. To John . . .

"Steady on!" He put a hand on her arm, swift tenderness in his tone. "I'll take a look round the corner!"

Three minutes later, her heart thudded with relief as they rounded the corner together. Tears stung in her eyes at the sight of them. Father and son . . . but so unlike.

She thought John looked pale, and was going to speak to him, when he brushed past her.

"Sorry, mom!" He hurried into the reception room. "Gee, Joan's all dolled up. Sue, too!"

"Everybody ready?" The photographer ushered them into the studio. There was the usual preliminary fuss and flutter. "You'll make a fine picture!"

A fine picture! Mary's mouth twisted.

Posing for a family picture. That's all it was. A pose. Soon there wouldn't be any family . . . they'd be broken up . . .

She glanced at Hugh. He was looking ridiculously proud. Sue on his lap, Joan standing beside him, her arm round his shoulder. Handsome, all three of them.

Only John and she were different, Mary thought. Plain and quiet; the sort nobody would look at twice.

"That's splendid." The photographer stood a few paces away, his eyes narrowed. "I think we've got it now!"

Mary felt, rather than saw, Hugh's smile flash out. Then the photographer pressed his bulb.

"That's all for a minute. I'd like to take another pose . . ." He stopped, startled. John had fallen to the floor in a dead faint.

"John!" Mary lost her head. He had looked pale. He was hurt . . . something had happened. "Oh, John darling . . ."

"Steady, Mary!" Hugh moved her gently aside. With incredible gentleness, he picked John up and carried him over to the settee. "You'll frighten the girls. Somebody get some water . . ."

Mary was only dimly conscious of Sue, letting out a frozen wail. Joan stood, frozen with horror. The photographer came back with water . . . and it was Hugh who bathed John's forehead.

It seemed an enternity before he opened his eyes.

"Oh Dad." He looked at Hugh first. "It's my arm. I . . . I got knocked down by a car, coming." He looked at Mary apologetically. "It really wasn't my fault . . . the lights had changed. But the lady was going so fast . . ."

"Why didn't you tell us, son?" Hugh's mouth twitched. "We'll have to get you along to the doctor . . . maybe Mr. Conningford will call us a cab . . ."

"I thought Mom would be scared." John's eyes met his father's; there was a gleam of humor in them that made him look oddly mature. "The lady was scared, too. The one who knocked me down. Then she asked me my name . . . and gee, she was mad. She said I must be as slow as my father!" John frowned. "I guess she'd got you muddled up . . ."

Elaine Lee. Anger flamed in Mary. Elaine Lee had knocked John down. She could picture that car. Elaine's reckless driving. She ought to be shot. Wheeling round, she met Hugh's eyes.

"Take the girls home, dear," Hugh spoke quietly. "I'll take John to Doctor Morrison. We'll talk later."

An hour later, a taxi stopped outside their door. From the window, Mary watched Hugh and John come up the path, John, very pale, but smiling, his arm in a sling.

"He's still alive and kicking. A fracture," Hugh said. "Doctor Morrison said to hustle him into bed. He'll be along in the morning."

"I'm okay, Mom." John let himself be taken upstairs. His eyes shone in his pale face. "You didn't have to worry." He smiled at her, shyly. "Gee, I wish Doctor Morrison would let me go to school soon . . . before he takes the sling off!" . . .

You didn't have to worry. With an effort, Mary restrained herself from hugging her small son. If only his father were like that! If only . . .

She went downstairs slowly, her lips compressed. Hugh, in the living-room, was pacing up and down. When she came in, he stopped, staring at her.

"I don't know how to ask you to forgive me," he said. "But it was as much my fault as Elaine's. I'd just told her I wouldn't see her again. I'm afraid I didn't put it tactfully. I told her my wife and family meant everything to me. That I'd been a fool all my life. I wasn't going to risk tossing all that away. She left my office in a blazing fury." Hugh met Mary's eyes. "That would make her drive recklessly. That's why she . . . she hit John . . ."

Mary couldn't speak. Confusedly, she tried to make sense out of what he was telling her. He had finished with Elaine. He didn't want to risk losing her . . . his family.

"It's you I love, Mary," Hugh was saying. "But I'm such a weak fool. I don't deserve a family. John's worth a dozen of me, even at his age . . ."

"John adores you." The words came in a whisper. Hope flared up in Mary. Hugh sounded as if he really meant it this time. Perhaps they ought to try again.

"John's like you, Mary. Loyal. He never lets you down." Suddenly Hugh came very close to her. "Oh, Mary, can you forgive me . . . for the last time?"

Somehow he seemed very like John as Mary opened her arms.

Richter Named To Boost Fair

In keeping with decentralization theme of the New York World's Fair of 1940, Paul G. Richter of Brookline was appointed eastern New England public relations representative today by Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the Fair board.

Paul Richter

Boston will be the headquarters of Richter, who is a Dartmouth graduate, class of 1920, and a member of the Twenty Club of N. E., the University Club of Boston and the Brookline Rotary Club.

The 1940 World's Fair will open on May 11 with "For Peace and Freedom" as its theme. Richter pointed out that the fair will cater to everyday folks this year.

Typical American families from the various states will appear as guests of the fair board committee. Low prices will be the order of the day and some 230,000 rooms will be listed for visitors

AUSTEN LAKE

The National Opiate: Or, the American Way

IZVESTIA, WHICH IS A KIND OF MOSCOW Charley McCarthy for the Soviet big-mouths, refers to the U. S. A. as a lot of "dollar-idoliters who fritter away time on nonessential foolishness and drug the workers' minds with the opiate of sport . . ."

AUSTEN LAKE

Well, a week from Monday, another round of "nonessential foolishness" (sic) begins when the Red Sox play in Washington as a preview before the President. F. D. R. will heave out a shiny new baseball and start the nation whooping until early October. Two weeks later, on May Day, Joe Stalin will review some 100,000 Muscovite warriors, gun-tractors, tanks and the latest death-dealing fabrications. He will watch —this swart, sullen man with menacing eyes, while his official yes-staff simper and ogle, and the sinister thousands pass like dispirited automatons.

In Washington the President will light the sunshine of his smile, stand docilely while camera men make a historic record, and then heave a duckwing toss as the crowd gives a throaty growl and the national "opiate" begins.

When F. D. R. flips out the inaugural ball it will be an old familiar story to Stanley Harris, the slim and marcelled manager of the Senators who bossed them during the administrations of Harding and Coolidge. And I have heard him tell how Harding was imbued with the spirit of the common fan and sometimes sneaked out the White House ash entrance, giving his secret service men the slip and buying his way into the bleacher sections where he sat among the rush customers and munched his peanuts and swiggled his pop. But Joseph Stalin leaves the shelter of the Kremlin rarely, and then in a bullet-proof car surrounded by G. P. U. riflemen. His drink is tasted for poisons. The cheers he hears are by compulsion!

Sport Chat Eased President's Cares

AND I HAVE HEARD WALTER JOHNSON, WHO survived five administrations, tell how Wilson used to have the White House limousine rolled through the right field gate and parked against the fence, where he would sit and watch the action from afar. And sometimes Wilson would buttonhole Johnson at some minor state function and usher him into the presidential study to hear him tell little yarns about his "foolishness" and such "nonessential" things as how he pitched to Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth

But Stalin's chums are essential wisemen like Buddepy, his cavalry chief, and Molotoff, his master of subversion. His fun is international mischief!

In the latter days of the Republican era Coolidge was a saturnine, inscrutable fan who rarely appeared at Griffith Park on any but opening days when he would flip out the first ball with his Campfire Girls toss and then sit down with a frozen face while Mrs. Grace Coolidge stirred around excitedly and followed the trend intelligently, referring to her score card, which she kept with a tiny golf pencil. Frequently Mrs. Coolidge would appear at the height of the season with groups of women friends and sit the afternoon away, applauding in the proper places and keeping sharp eye for foul balls. But Stalin's wives were mystic ghosts who hid in dark chambers and died of strange maladies —hooded women from the Georgian seraglios.

THERE WERE MOMENTS DURING THE LATTER part of Hoover's term when his political managers were trying to color him over with the little humanities in order to sell him back to the people—a belated attempt which caused them to charter a special train and go up to Philadelphia to watch the World Series. He posed with the players, standing patiently with a wistful half smile and he shook hands understandingly when Babe Ruth, in his camel's hair coat, barged up to the flag-draped box and said "Hyyuh, Mr. President!" a thing that Hoover seemed to enjoy and which left a fleeting bulge of brightness on his face until it sagged back to its solemn character. Yet, when he stood up to heave out the first ball, there were mingled moos among the cheers, and undertone of sour hurts that marred his visit.

Would any Muscovite feel free to moo at you, Mr. Stalin, and if he did would he immediately languish in some dark, underground cell before being liquidated by a Soviet firing squad? Our Constitution makes the President the nation's chief servant, but you possess your people, Mr. Stalin!

Unlike F. D. R., who has what theatrical folk call a bit of hum in his makeup, Hoover was shy and did not like to be stared at. Nor did he have the trick of easy conversation, so that when he stood up to toss the first pitch and the camera men would yell, "Just one more now and hold that ball up

Rangers Nip Leafs In Overtime Duel

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs' plans for the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs appear to be to hold New York's Rangers down and wear them down, in the first two games in New York. Then they'll cut loose with their own offense when they get back home next Saturday to finish the series.

It looks like a good plan, too, on the basis of their showing last night in the first game of the best-of-seven series for hockey's most valued trophy. The Rangers won, 2 to 1, but they had to play 13½ minutes of overtime to get the odd goal that just about measured the difference between the two teams.

MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

They meet again tonight and another victory seems imperative for the Rangers if they hope to beat the Leafs as decisively as they did the Boston Bruins in the first round of the National Hockey League playoffs.

The winning goal by young Alf Pike caught the Leafs by surprise and was well deserved, but the first Ranger tally was almost as fluky as the lone Toronto goal. And the fact that two of the league's highest scoring teams made only three goals in 75 minutes speaks emphatically of the cautious defenses of both sides.

The pressure of the Ranger offensive system, which brings the defensemen up into the attacking zone on every play that carries a real scoring threat, was partly responsible for Art Coulter's opening tally at 9:09 of the first period. A Toronto player attempted to hoist the puck clear from the end boards and Coulter stopped it and drove it right back into the cage.

A GIFT GOAL

Less than two minutes later Red Heron and Sweeney Schriner sped through the Ranger defense to tie the count with something like a "gift" goal. Davey Kerr went down blocking Heron's shot and the puck slid past him toward the net. It might have gone on in or stopped short if left alone but Pike, making a desperate effort to clear, removed all doubt by shoving it into the goal.

That misplay was almost forgotten, however, when the rookie utility forward broke up the "sudden death" overtime period with a well executed play. Starting from the center zone, he passed to Lynn Patrick at the blue line and received a return pass in front of the Leaf defense. Before Bingo Kampman could check him, Pike got off a high shot that sailed into the net faster than Goalie Turk Broda could move to block it.

MAT RESULTS

By the Associated Press

MONTREAL—Maurice (The Angel) Tillet, 218, France, defeated Ernie Dusek, 232, Omaha, Neb., straight falls.

INDIANAPOLIS—Jim McMillen, 235, Chicago, defeated John Grandvich, 245, New York, straight falls.

NO. 1 catching job is again Gene Desautels' as the Sox are fast approaching the opening of the American League campaign. The former Holy Cross star has worked harder than the lowliest rookie in the squad to regain his old post.

73-Year-Old Kegler Rolls 104 Average

By MURRAY KRAMER

From the welter of entries that pour into the Huntington Club from all over this part of the country for the fifth annual American-Record-Advertiser Diamond Medal Bowling Championships now under way, there are a great many interesting stories.

There have been brothers, brothers and sisters, fathers and sons and even a father-in-law and daughter-in-law, but never before has a team entered boasting of three generations, and an uncle, on the same quintet.

This team hails from Newbury-

RUTH ALPERTS

Rolls for Prize Today

port and is known as the Johnnies Wonders. They will roll Saturday night.

ROLLING AT 73

The team is captained by George C. White, Jr., who is 21 years old and a student at Burdett College in Lynn. On the same team is his father, George C. White, Sr., and his 73-year-old grandfather, George White, and his uncle, Fred White Walter Caswell, a very close friend of the family, is the fifth member of the team.

And there is quite a human tug behind the entry of Grandfather White for Johnny White, Jr. In a letter which accompanied the entry blank he wrote:

"My grandfather was seriously ill last winter and during his siege his only thought was to get better so he could compete one more year in your enormous tournament."

And grandfather is not rolling for any such reason as family sympathy or loyalty, either. He's really a top notch kegler.

Grandfather White has been averaging 104 per string all this winter.

With this as the situation, the oldest member of the White clan should be a definite asset Saturday night.

113 AVERAGE

John, Jr., has been averaging 113 per string; John, Sr., has been hitting the 105 mark on an average, while Uncle Fred has been rolling in tough luck and is down at a 91 figure.

Walt Caswell, the fifth member, is a decided asset. His average is 110 and at one time this past winter he set up a new three-string total record in the Newburyport League with a total of 449.

This is an almost unbelievable total and if Walt can come within 50 pins of this total, he would have a chance of winning the men's singles.

The highlight of the day came when Nancy Higgins, a 13-year-old girl from Dorchester turned in a 273 total which was truly amazing . . . at the time she had rolled the highest three string total turned in by any gal or woman in the tourney to date . . . before the day was over, though, Nancy was forced to move down . . . Barbara Kruschwitz of Brighton took command in the girls' division with a 280 total.

S. S. PIERCE GIRL BOWLERS have eyes for American-Record-Advertiser 5th Annual Bowling Championships at the Huntington Alleys. First row, left to right: Mary Singleton, Margaret McCarthy, Manager Walter Baker, Marie McCabe and Rita Sampson. Second row: Mary Scully, Marion Marlow, Kay Nixon, Irene Sullivan, Jo Willett, Kay Sullivan, Isabelle DeCosta, Betty Mahoney, Jo Somers, Mary Cassino and Marie Hanwell. Third row: Marion Sennott, Kay Mulroy, Nary Murphy, Ann Kelleher, Eskie Dorr, Katherine Kinnear, Rita MacPherson, Elizabeth Wyatt, Virginia Ring and Marie Keene.

WEST HITS 430-FOOT HOMER

BRADENTON, Fla., April 3—In the final Yannigan game before breaking camp, the Kellys flattened the Caseys 11 to 5 under a boiling sun.

Joe Callahan, the East Boston boy, started for the Kellys and held his opponents to six hits and four runs, and Bill McElroy, the rookie from the Coast, finished up.

Dick Errickson went the route for the Caseys and had three bad innings. He was reached for a total of 14 hits, and the Kellys pushed five runs across in the fourth, four in the seventh and two in the eighth.

Although Stan Andrews came up with three hits, Max West's home run smash over the right field fence was the outstanding feature. In the first inning, West caught hold of a Callahan serve and the ball cleared the fence with plenty to spare, about 430 feet from home plate.

Manager Casey Stengel left for Sebring this morning to see George Weis of the Newark Bears.

Quits Ring

CINCINNATI, April 3 (AP)—Freddie Miller, 29, once recognized as featherweight champion by the National Boxing Association, hung up his gloves today. He lost last night to Herschel Jolnter of Cincinnati in an eight-round technical knockout. Miller said he was retiring from the ring.

escort him on his ticket-distributing rounds . . . The boy rushes the receipts to the Copley Plaza Hotel where the ticket proceeds are entrusted to box, lock and key . . . The Rogers dinner positively will NOT be the Mississippi Kid's "last hustle."

FINAL AND ABSOLUTE PROOF of Shakespeare's consummate knowledge of show-business of then and now as expressed in "the play's the thing," is adduced by the records of the Boston theaters which housed Walter Huston in "A Passenger to Bali," and Ethel Barrymore in "An International Incident" . . . The uninitiate simply would refuse to believe those figures (receipts) . . . It would not seem possible that two stars of the reputation and experience of Mr. Huston and Miss Barrymore could fail, so spectacularly, to attract audiences . . . Yet it is happening every month, and HAS happened every month in the theater's past —this sickening failure of expensive ventures built around the very best of stage "names" . . . The Ethel Barrymore play also had Vincent Sheean, a "name" author as playwright.

THE MENORAH INSTITUTE'S annual benefit all-star show happens Sunday at the Colonial . . . Hy Fine and Bob Sternberg, the motion picture executives, and Ralph Harris, the statistician, are heading committees . . . Each year, the Menorah Institute variety show brings out the best talent in town . . . The Lowell Sunday night vaudeville "big name" venture discussed in this space Monday came a cropper very quickly . . . We disclosed the news that Lowell politicos were annoyed at the "outsiders" element of the adventure. (Two Boston nightclub men were the operators) . . . But the extreme vulnerability of the proposition was that the city owned the theater. The mayor put an end to it all when Lowell motion picture operators complained bitterly at the "outside opposition" . . . So, simply enough, the theater became suddenly no longer for rent of Sundays.

SOX WIN ON FOXX'S CIRCUIT

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 3—Capt. James E. Foxx took full command of his Red Sox crew.

With the score tied at two-all in the fifth inning, Double X dumped a "Bucky" Walters pitch over the right center field barrier for a three-run homer which gave the Hose a 6 to 3 verdict and their fourth win in five Spring starts over Will McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds, National League champs.

It's a distance of 373 feet, a country mile for a right-handed slicker, to the spot on the wall that the Foxx drive cleared with yards to spare, after "Doc" Cramer and Teddy Williams had singled with two gone in the frame.

Teddy Williams had a perfect day at bat even though he failed to hit a homer for the first time in three successive efforts against Cincinnati chucking.

Barrow Fears Only Indians

NEW YORK, April 3 (INS)—Would you say that a man knows something about baseball after being in the game for half a century in every department?

If so, you may then be willing to take a tip from the man in question—Ed Barrow, president of the Yanks. And here's his tip:

"The Yanks are stronger than ever and will win their fifth straight pennant this year."

And it may surprise you to learn that Ed leaves the distinct impression that he and the Yankee players think the Cleveland Indians, rather than the Boston Red Sox, will be the runner-up to the Yanks.

"The Indians have a great infield this season," said Ed, "good catching and there is nothing wrong with their outfield. They also have Feller, and I'd say their pitching should be at least as good as Boston's."

Casey's Mat Title In Danger Tonight

Bobby Managoff, young Armenian from Chicago, will rule just about even money when he clashes with Steve (Crusher) Casey for the World's heavyweight wrestling title tonight at the Arena.

Bobby, fastest thing a wrestling ring has seen in more than 10 years, will go after Steve from the start with his famous drop kick, which rates with Gus Sonnenberg's flying tackle, Danno O'Mahony's Irish whip and the Angel's "bear hug." The drop kick has been winning him most of his bouts here and because of it many of his followers think he is a sure-fire, double-edged certainty to win Casey's title.

In the semi-final, Marvin (Shadow) Westenberg, the former world's champion, meets Frank Judson, clever Attleboro veteran, while preliminaries will include Pedro Brazil, champion of South America, vs. Harry Finkelstein, Jim Casey vs. Charley Strack and Frank Marconi vs. Eddie Newman.

Desautels Regains No. 1 Catching Tag

By HERB FINNEGAN

STATESVILLE, N. C., April 3—A ball player is supposed to be on his way down hill at 33, but one of the finest uphill climbs of the era is being enacted this spring by Gene Desautels, Red Sox catcher, who will hit the 33 mark before his alma mater completes its next Commencement.

The Holy Cross boy was blamed for most of the Sox ills last season. He hit an anaemic .243 compared to a robust .291 in '38. And at the end of the season he saw little Johnny Peacock in his job. He caught in only 78 games, compared to 108 the year before.

A year before he was being acclaimed for helping the Sox to second place. In '39 he was being condemned because the Sox could finish no higher than second.

BLAMED FOR EVERYTHING

The collapse of the Sox pitching staff was attributed to Gene, and it was even being whispered about that he had a finger in the sinking of the Athenia.

The Sox simply had to have a Grade A catcher if they ever were going to catch those Damn-Yankees, the fans shouted, so why didn't they go out and get one?

Frank Hayes of the A's, Birdie Tebbetts of the Tigers, Joe Glenn of the Browns all were coming to the Sox. They didn't, but finally George Lacy was purchased from Minneapolis at a fancy figure.

Gene said nothing. He retired to his Southbridge, Mass., home, sawed wood, shoveled snow and kept his tongue in his cheek.

WORKED LIKE BEAVER

Coming down on the train to camp on Feb. 28, one felt for him. Ted Williams was the cynosure of all eyes the first day out. Then came rookies Mickey Harris, Elton Deuse, etc. Desautels just cleaned up all the dough in the poker games, and didn't predict once that he'd hit .300. In fact he didn't mention baseball at all unless a reporter asked him a question which wasn't often. Gene, it was felt, was on his way out. After all, somebody remarked, he didn't even make the first team at Holy Cross in '30.

Gene was quiet on the train but from the very first day out on the ball field his actions spoke eloquently.

He was doing more running than ever before. He was working overtime on his hitting. He was forever hustling and it didn't take long for one to see that he had it all over George Lacy as a receiver and thrower.

But Lacy was getting the breaks because he was a power hitter. He hit them far, all right, in batting practice. Perhaps he'll do it in games, too—if gets into any.

Gets into any is right, for Gene has firmly re-established himself as No. 1 Red Sox catcher, and from the way he is going it will be a long time before he loses the job.

Gene is a classy receiver. He's one of the few that know how to shift with the pitcher, how to tell whether a hitter is looking for a curve ball by his feet action or the way he grips his bat; he knows how to throw a ball without wasting a step, he knows a hundred and one other things about catching that only the smart receiver ever learns.

LEAHY UNWORRIED BY FLUNKS

Although he is forced to work without the services of four grid stars of last fall for the rest of the spring season, Coach Frank Leahy of Boston College refused to let it worry him and is quite certain that when the gridiron season rolls along this fall, this quartet of stars will be in the fold.

Because of scholastic difficulties, Rev. John J. Long, S. J., college dean, declared that Charley O'Rourke, Lou Montgomery, John Yauckoes and Alex Lukachik would be ineligible to participate in athletics this spring.

The players dropped are expected to make up their conditions and deficiencies through the usual classes and summer school courses provided without too much trouble as they all have had high marks in the flunked subjects. So it is doubted that any of the quartet will be missing from the squad next fall.

DAVE WILSON'S FORM AT BOWIE TRACK

BEST BET—UVALDE IN SEVENTH RACE

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., April 3—Excellent form in his most recent starts makes it impossible to overlook Uvalde in the seventh race—a mile and a sixteenth journey—on the program here this afternoon.

The five-year-old gelding turned in a fine triumph over this same course Monday, moving up in plenty of time for the victory, and appears to be the best bet on this card.

In his previous effort, Uvalde gained headstarts in his Florida finale. Uvalde is coupled with Flushing as the I. Bieber-Mrs. E. D. Jacobs entry.

FIRST RACE—Purse $1000, maiden 2-year-olds, 4 furlongs (special weights): (Mud selections—Ring Star, Ballarosa, Silver Voice.)

P.P.	Horse	Wgt.	Jockey	P. Odds	Comment

higher," he would do it with stiff features and a marble pose. But he did it! And would you, Mr. Stalin, hold steady if Izvestia's photo men yelled, "Hoist that hand grenade higher Joe! Give us that old savage leer again! Now one more!"

ROOSEVELT II HAS COMMAND OF THE FAN'S familiar lingo and can be poised, last year, in sitting position with his arm cocked and spraying the scenery with his smile, he warned Rick Ferrell, the Washington catcher, "I've got a lot of stuff on my ball, look out!" a remark that his recent executive methods would seem be belie, because various congressional sluggers have knock'd his curves out of the lot lately and the time is not very far distant when the nation may need to warm up another pitcher.

Still "nonessential" or otherwise, it's the American way and we prefer roto-photos of our chief brandishing a baseball rather than those of Stalin and Hitler heiling regiments of goose-stepping youth on their way to slaughter, or haranguing their legions on the latest international anatch. Nor does it cheapen his office that he lends himself to a business in which the commercial phases are skillfully concealed behind a screen of sentiment, or that the Red Sox and Senators are practical firms dedicated to making some profits for their stockholders. The time has come to make a friendly gesture toward business, if only by tossing out a yarn, rubber and horsehide ball. Throw out more friendly balls, Mr. President!

And could a sport page hireling talk about you like that, Mr. Stalin, if your subsidized journels had any sport pages? You'd have my hide over a fence, eh Joe?

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE SPEED-RAY pictures appearing exclusively in the Boston Evening American-Daily Record and Sunday Advertiser are being used by hockey and basketball players, track stars and boxers to improve their game.

When the Bruins and Rangers battled in the recent playoff series, the rival clubs studied Speed-Ray pictures of the action on the ice. The "frozen action" pictures showed the players their good and bad points, and enabled them to get a line on the opposition.

Boxers have benefited a great deal from the Speed-Ray pictures. Managers have often found it difficult to explain errors made by boxers under their direction. Young boxers often deny they make certain mistakes. When the boxers see the Speed-Ray pictures, they get a perfect idea of their wrong moves, and study how to correct them.

The Speed-Ray has been particularly successful in taking "frozen action" pictures of track events and basketball games with a decided benefit to the athletes competing in these sports.

Movies Great Help to Sports Leaders

Leaders in athletics have been quick to recognize the help they can receive from a camera or the movies.

Connie Mack is planning to improve the playing of the members of the Athletics by the use of moving picture cameras. Connie will take pictures of his young players in action, and then point out their faults to them as they watch the pictures being run off.

In football, the camera and movies have been used for years to improve play.

Back in the days when Percy Haughton was head football coach at Harvard, Dick Sears of the Boston Evening American staff furnished the Crimson leader a copy of every football picture he took during the season. Haughton and his players would study these pictures, to improve the standard of the Harvard team.

Movies are now taken of every Harvard football clash, and are run off with Dick Harlow and the players watching. Harlow, with a pointer in hand, explains the good and the bad features of the game.

JACK SHARKEY has a complete moving picture setup in his home at Chestnut Hill. He has pictures of all of his major bouts, and also of most other important heavyweight battles of the last dozen years.

Gene Tunney also liked to study the moving pictures of bouts in which he engaged. Tunney was a hard taskmaster for himself, and never spared himself criticism if he thought it was due him.

"Harry Day Camera" Also Times Horses

The race tracks have all adopted camera finishes. Most of the modern cameras also take a complete picture of the race through the stretch. These pictures are helpful to the stewards in determining fouls.

In addition to giving a complete picture of the race, the "Harry Day Camera" that will be on duty at Narraganaett Park again this year also times all of the horses. These timings often show that the fourth or fifth horse was only one-fifth of a second slower than the winner.

In cases where the fourth or fifth horse suffered interference or received a bad ride, it is usually safe to play him in the next race. The Boston Evening American Race Special Edition will carry these complete times once more this year. They will help you in handicapping the races.

PICTURES ARE a wonderful aid in the teaching of golf. Bobby Jones made a series of pictures for Warner Brothers several years ago that were shown all over the world.

The public as well as athletes has become picture conscious. I believe the Speed-Ray pictures of the recent Bruins-Rangers series that appeared in this newspaper attracted more attention than any stories written on the ice classic. A good picture can give a better story of a tense moment in athletic competition than a column of type.

YOU HEARD WHAT THAT RAILROAD WORKER SAID — A TANK CAR OF OIL WAS BUSTED IN A FREIGHT WRECK AND THE OIL FLOWED DOWN IN THIS SWAMP! — — YOU FATHEAD, — NOW WE'RE OUT $ 800! — WHY DIDN'T YOU INVESTIGATE FIRST?—
LISTEN, YOU DOPE, — YOU WERE THE ONE WHO BUSHED THE DEAL! — I TOLD YOU I WAS OUT DRIVING AND SAW A SWAMP FULL OF OIL, AND YOU HAD ME JUMP THE GUN IN A RUSH TO BUY IT! —
INVESTIGATE FIRST! — I SUPPOSE, WISE GUY, IF YOU FOUND GOLD IN THE ROCKIES, YOU'D RUN AROUND TO SEE IF A DENTIST LOST IT!

WILSON CLICKS WITH 6 MORE

Dave Wilson's sensational winnnig streak at picking winners continued merrily yesterday.

Wilson named three winners at Bowie, Bell High, $4.10; Presidential $4.10 and Filandro $4.90.

There were also three winners for Wilson at Tropical Park, Jay Bee Dee, $3.30; Hi Pov, $6.10 and Life Guard $12.00.

Dave Wilson's famous "bird cage" betting system just missed a grand slam.

Presidential won at Bowie, Arga finished second at Tropical, while Exarch placed at Tanforan.

DAVE WILSON

The code for Wilson's "bird cage" racing system may be secured in "Dave Wilson's Winners," published each week and on sale by all newsdealers. The code horses for the "bird cage" system are published each day in the Race Special Edition of the Boston Evening American. Wilson hopes to run his bankroll to $1000.00.
